STRONG WINDS UPSET BOAT AT CHARLES MILL

Mansfielder Effects Third Rescue In 3 Weeks; Heavy Rain Misses City.

CLEVELAND HIT HARD

Clevelander, Trapped In Sewer By Cloudburst, Brought To Surface Today.

Two men were rescued from Charles Mill lake at 8 p. m. Wednesday after their boat capsized in a wind and rain storm which swept across the southern part of Richland county, narrowly missing Mansfield.

Severe storms which broke the heat wave caused heavy damage last night and early today in Cleveland, Newark, Zanesville and Cincinnati with the Cleveland area hit hardest.

Pulled from the waters of Charles Mill lake were Hobart Ridenour, South Diamond street, and William Green, West Third street, whose motor boat overturned as the heavy wind and rain struck the lake. They were clinging to the boat when Albert J. Kipp, 166 Columbia avenue, rescued them. He was in an 18-foot sailboat nearby and saw their boat capsize.

It was Kipp's third rescue of capsized boat victims at the lake in three weeks. Last Sunday he went to the rescue of members of the Ray Patterson family from South Boulevards after their boat overturned, and on May 30 he pulled four Crestline residents out of the lake, including a man, two women, and a child.

Although no wind damage was reported in the county in last night's storm, rain of near cloudburst proportions fell over a strip across the county just south of Mansfield, washing roads and leaving deep gullies in newly-planted fields.

For the second consecutive night, severe storms swept through Cleveland, impeding traffic and leaving a trail of damaged buildings and uprooted trees.

Gordon Tempeny, 54, a sewer construction project foreman, who was marooned 65 feet underground in an airtight sewer compartment during last night's storm, was brought safely to the surface this morning by workmen who pumped thousands of gallons of water

At Tappan Army-Navy 'E' Presentation Ceremonies

More than 1,000 persons yesterday witnessed presentation of the Army-Navy "E" for coveted production award to the Tappan Stove company management and employes in a colorful outdoor ceremony. The workers whose diligence and cooperation made possible the winning of the award are shown in the first picture seated in a reserved center section proudly wearing the caps given them for the occasion. 2. Major Alan Tappan, Army Air Forces, home from his duties in Washington, serves as master-of-ceremonies. 3. Representing the navy in this joint award, Lieut.-Cmdr. A. E. Heiser, chief resident inspector of navy materiel, praises the employes for the "teamwork, understanding and tolerance" which contributed to the production excellence. 4. Miss Dorcas Bertsch, representing the employes, receives her "E" pin from Major Albert C. Crawford, Fifth Service Command, Ft. Hayes, Columbus. 5. Uniforms of the two services making the presentation mingled with the uniforms of the home-front industrial workers being honored. 'E' Banner Unfurled, Tappan Renews Its War Work Pledge

By MARY DAVIDSON

As the Army-Navy "E" flag, symbol of their excellent production record, flew over the plant today, management and employes of Tappan Stove company pledged themselves anew to the task of turning out more and more material to defeat the Axis.

It was Paul R. Tappan, president of the company, who, speaking for the employes, made the pledge at the "E" presentation ceremonies before more than 1,000 persons gathered in the company's parking lot Wednesday afternoon.

"Earning this award has been a great satisfaction and a big boost to the Tappan company employes," the president said. "In six months we shall lose this flag or receive a gold star for working harder and producing more. I can speak for all when I say we shall earn that star."

Major Alan Tappan, Army Air Forces, acting as master-of-ceremonies at the colorful open air ceremony, traced the history of the plant's change from range manufacture to war contracts. He cited it as a job which was not easy but one which was accomplished with no lay-off of employes.

Representing the navy in the award given jointly by the army and navy for excellence in production, Lieut.-Cmdr. A. E. Heiser, chief resident inspector congratulated the workers on their spirit of co-operation, their teamwork, mutual understanding and tolerance which has made possible the winning of the coveted award.

"Tappan employes have realized that every hour of this war is important and their goal has been to bring the end of the war one hour closer," he said.

"When you see the words army and navy on this red, white and

Cigaret Gifts on 'Preferred' List For Service Men

Yesterday's News-Journal carried a story on a poll of a group of soldiers indicating that cigarets were the most popular gift with the men overseas — 26 per cent picked them as gifts they would like to receive.

What does that mean? It means that you can help give those boys the cigarets they want. You can do it by contributing to the American Legion Auxiliary-News-Journal drive for smokes for the Yanks on the battle fronts.

In order to buy 1,000,000 cigarets—that's the goal that has been set — Mansfielder's will have to contribute $2,500. Here's a good idea. Every time you buy a pack of cigarets, drop a nickel in the jar on the counter and you'll buy a pack for a fighting man.

If you don't smoke you can still put your contributions in the many jars in business places throughout the city. Or you can attend the benefit midnight show at the Ohio theater June 30 which will feature local talent in a stage show in addition to a moving picture. Admission charge is 50 cents and patrons tickets from $1 up will be on sale.

CAVE NAMED

Appointed Acting Mansfield Postmaster By Walker.

Frank Cave, Mansfield real estate dealer and former speaker of the Ohio house of representatives, today was appointed acting Mansfield postmaster by Postmaster General Frank Walker.

Cave said he would not take charge until a government postoffice inspector checks the office and notifies him of the time set for installation which may be within a week, or by July 1 at the latest.

Endorsed for the acting postmaster's post by the Richland county Democratic executive committee two weeks ago, Cave will fill the vacancy caused by the recent death of Postmaster Herman E. Homberger. Cave, who is county Democratic executive chairman, will serve until a permanent postmaster appointment is made following a civil service examination for the job.

EXTENDS HOURS

Herbert Rules Woman May Work Seven Days.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— War industries may employ women more than six days a week if it is necessary to meet "production schedules, orders or requirements, the failure to meet which would hinder or obstruct the war effort," Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert ruled.

INDICTED FOR MURDER

AKRON—(AP)—William Schmidt, 50, was indicted on a first degree murder charge yesterday in the fatal shooting June 4 of 15-year-old Rosemary Chandler. Akron police said the radio technician admitted shooting the girl during a rendezvous in a garage stock room.

AIRPORT FUND UP FOR STUDY

Council's Finance Committee To Discuss City Cost For $600,000 Project.

Problem of raising funds to buy land necessary for the Mansfield airport development project for which the federal government allocated $600,000 last Monday will be taken before city council's finance committee at a meeting tonight, Mayor W. J. Locke said today.

Still awaiting definite instructions about what it is expected to do toward the expansion program, the city doesn't know how much land will be required or the amount of money that will be needed, so the council committee can do nothing more than discuss means of obtaining funds, the mayor said.

Tonight's committee meeting was called for study of the proposed city budget for 1944, but Mayor Locke said it would give him his first chance to present the problem to council which ultimately must determine the source of the city's share of the cost.

NO SHORTAGE

Mansfield Dairies Report Ample Butter Supply.

Although many cities and counties in Ohio were faced with a serious butter shortage, Mansfield dairies today reported a sufficient supply.

At Ashland two dairies suspended retail and wholesale sales of butter for one week so they might meet government sales quotas for the month of May.

The two dairies suspending are short 7,000 pounds of butter on their May quota and will attempt to meet the quotas with their entire output during the next week.

Chaplin, Bride Honeymoon In Secret, Joan Barry Watched

(By International News Service)

SANTA BARBARA, Cal.—White-haired Charles Chaplin and his fourth bride, 18-year-old Oona O'Neill, were honeymooning today following their surprise marriage yesterday in nearby Carpinteria.

The unheralded ceremony which united the 54-year-old actor and the tall, attractive brunette daughter of Eugene O'Neill, noted playwright, was a three-minute affair in the modest home of Justice of the Peace Clinton P. Moore.

It took place within a few minutes after a highly nervous Chaplin and Miss O'Neill obtained their marriage license as the day's first applicants at the Santa Barbara county clerk's office.

As the newly married couple hurried to an undisclosed hideaway for champagne-before-breakfast, Chaplin's 23-year-old former protege, Joan Barry, was reported near collapse in her Los Angeles hotel quarters.

Miss Barry's attorney summoned a physician and two nurses to watch over the girl who charged Chaplin with being the father of her unborn child—a charge which he has repeatedly denied.

The comedian, previously married to Mildred Harris, Lita Grey and Paulette Goddard, gave his age as 54 and his birthplace as London. Miss O'Neill, marrying for the first time, was asked for a birth certificate when she gave her age as 18. She produced it promptly.

Mansfield Primary Ruled Out For First Time In 20 Years

For the first time since the present primary election law went into effect some 20 years ago, Mansfield will have no primary election in August.

This decision was reached last night by the county election board, headed by George C. Ballict as chairman.

The board approved the withdrawal of the candidacy of W. W. Carter, who had filed for council president on the Republican ticket. It also approved the withdrawal of George C. Kyle, also a Republican, for the same nomination. Kyle, however, has filed petitions for council-at-large, a post he now holds.

Carter's withdrawal eliminated the only contest in either party, and thus eliminates the need of a primary election.

Election laws provide that the election board may certify lists of candidates to the secretary of state in the event there are no contests and thus escape the expense of conducting a primary.

The board approved the petitions of all other candidates in both parties, and as a result of cancelling the primary, their names will appear for the first time on the city election ballot in November.

As the slates now stand, the Republicans have candidates for all offices except city auditor and Fourth and Fifth ward council. Democrats have no candidates for First or Second ward council.

The Republican ticket is headed by Mayor W. J. Locke running for a third term, while Glenn W. Marriott, former county prosecutor, is the Democratic candidate for mayor.

USES THREAT

Union Talks Court Action as WLB Prepares Decision.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The United Mine Workers kept the threat of court action over coal operators today in their controversy on the union's demand for portal-to-portal pay.

The claim for underground travel pay is the central issue in the UMW wage dispute now before the War Labor Board. The board is expected to release its decision today or tomorrow but some observers doubt that its decision will be binding unless the union accepts.

The union spokesman said UMW officials believed that no government agency except the courts could rule on the portal-to-portal demand. He indicated that the only alternative was a contract provision acceptable to the union.

CHANGES PRICE

OPA Orders Sliding Scale Charge for Hosiery.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The Office of Price Administration today substituted a sliding scale of $0.79-$1.25 for the flat $1 maximum retail price on women's combination silk hosiery.

Combination silk hose are made of silk twisted with rayon or cotton. The new price scale, effective at retail July 17, is 79 cents for 39 gauge and lower, 89 cents for 42 gauge, $1 for 45 gauge, $1.15 for 48 gauge and $1.25 for 51 gauge and higher.

HATTERS WANT FDR

TAMIMENT, Pa. — (INS) — A fourth term for President Roosevelt was urged today by the general executive board of the United Hatters, Caps and Millinery Workers International union. The AFL union indorsed the fourth term at their semi-annual meeting here.

Militia Restores Order After Race Rioting In Texas

BEAUMONT, Tex.—State militia, who spread their blankets on the city hall lawn last night with their sub-machine guns close at hand, restored order to this gulf coast shipbuilding center today after 24 hours of race rioting in which a white man and a negro were killed.

Acting Governor A. M. Aiken, jr., placed the city under martial law last night after 60 Negroes had been hospitalized and about 100 homes and shops in the Negro district had been destroyed in the rioting, which broke out after a young white woman told police she had been raped by a Negro.

More than 1,000 state guardsmen came to the aid of Texas Rangers and local peace officers with the imposition of martial law.

An 8:30 p. m. curfew ordered last night kept everyone but war workers off the streets and prevented a recurrence of the violence of the night before, when mobs of white men invaded the

Algiers Claims Turkey Recalls Its Ambassador

Envoys to France, Salonika Going Home While Nazis Demand Consul Leave Mytelene, Says Broadcast; Axis Fears Allied Blow at Balkans.

BULLETIN

BERN, Switzerland—(AP)—Ambassador Behij of Turkey has been recalled to Ankara from Vichy in protest against recent severe Gestapo restrictions upon his embassy, a Turkish diplomatic source said today.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—An Algiers radio broadcast recorded by the Associated Press said today Turkey had broken off diplomatic relations with the Vichy government of France.

Turkey was reported to have recalled her ambassador from the Nazi-dominated French capital.

The Algiers radio, which has not always proved strictly accurate in its reports of political developments, did not go into detail. There was no direct confirmation from Ankara or Vichy.

London diplomatic quarters which normally would be informed of any such break could not confirm the report and said they were inclined to doubt it.

A later broadcast from Algiers, recorded by Reuters, said Germany has asked Turkey to recall her consul in Mytilene, capital of the Greek island of Mytilene in the Aegean sea off the Turkish coast 170 miles northeast of Athens.

The Turkish consul at Salonika was reported already recalled.

This broadcast also was without confirmation from other quarters.

Nazis Try To Quash Rumania 'Breakaway'

LONDON — (INS) — Nazi fears that powerful Allied armies will strike at the subjugated continent from the Near East while meting out constant punishment to Italy from North Africa became increasingly evident today.

Concern of the Germans was heightened as a result of the official confirmation by the British embassy in Ankara, Turkey, that the Turkish-Syrian frontier had been closed to shroud "troop movements."

Events relating to Rumania, important Balkan satellite of the Reich, also intensified the activity of the Nazi high command seeking to set every possible stopgap in the way of a possible Allied assault through southeastern Europe.

Gestapo Chief Henrich Himmler, according to a report by the Algiers radio which quoted neutral sources, has been sent to Bucharest to take over control of Rumanian police.

The Moscow radio, according to Reuter's, described the atmosphere in Bucharest as tense and said that many prominent Rumanians had been arrested, apparently as a result of the intervention of Himmler. The arrested were said to include General Ullea, Court Chamberlain, and various prominent members of the Rumanian security police.

Others were said to have gone into hiding.

The possibility of invasion, the Algiers broadcast said, has created great apprehension among Rumanian officialdom.

Himmler's reported presence in the Rumanian capital took on added significance in connection with advices from Ankara stating that Rumania had put forward peace feelers in an effort to determine the disposition of both the Axis and the Allies should the Rumanians withdraw from the war.

Rumania, according to persons close to diplomatic circles in Ankara, had a neutral diplomat confer with Allied and Turkish authorities. The unidentified representative was said to have dropped a hint that the Rumanians might drop out of the Axis camp if Russia allows Rumania to re-

VICTORY: Yanks Bag 77 Jap Planes In Day Over Solomons

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The navy reported today that 77 Japanese planes were shot down by American fliers in one of the greatest aerial battles of the war fought over Guadalcanal.

Only six U. S. planes were lost.

The navy reported that the battle occurred on June 16 but that no details were available except that Japanese losses were 32 bombers and 45 Zeros.

No estimate was made of the total enemy attacking force but it was believed to be more than 100 planes.

This appeared to be the greatest force ever thrown by the enemy against American forces on Guadalcanal and indicated that the Japanese may be making a determined effort to check an anticipated American counter-offensive.

The last previous record bag by American pilots from Guadalcanal was last April 7, when 39 out of 98 Japanese planes were destroyed while they were attacking an American convoy off that island.

"A brief report received from the South Pacific reveals that, in an air battle over Guadalcanal on June 16, U. S. planes shot down 32 Japanese bombers and 45 Zero fighters," the navy said. "Six U. S. planes are missing."

The navy added that no further details of the gigantic air battle have been received.

Both American and Japanese airmen in the South Pacific have

RE-VISITED: Cologne Rocked By RAF Bombs for 116th Time

(By Associated Press)

British block-buster armadas thundered new destruction on the German home front before dawn today, hammering the Rhineland war foundries city of Cologne for the 116th time, while RAF fighters shot up transport and other targets in Nazi-occupied Holland and Belgium.

By daylight, Allied planes carried on the round-the-clock offensive across the English channel and destroyed six Axis fighters against a loss of one RAF aircraft.

Fourteen RAF bombers and one fighter were listed as missing in the night's operations.

In the Mediterranean, Allied long-range fighters attacking from bases in the Middle East sank three more enemy ships in the Aegean sea, while the mass of Lieut. Gen. Carl A. Spaatz's northwest Africa air force took a day off after violent assaults Tuesday on five Axis airdromes in Sicily.

Swift RAF Mosquito bombers from Malta continued to blast Sicily and southern Italy during the night, pouring cannon and machine-gun fire into road transport, rail targets, bridges and military hut camps.

"A destroyer escorting a convoy was gunned, causing a brilliant flash astern," the British announced.

Dispatches from La Linea, Spain, again reported a big-scale massing of Allied ships at Gibraltar, declaring that 75 vessels including a battleship, two air-

VODKA MAKES HOUSES JUST MELT AWAY!

Correspondent Reports It's Best To Eat When You Try Soviet National Drink.

(Editor's Note: A disappearing house and a threatening stage-German are some of the results produced by Vodka, Russia's national drink, says Eddy Gilmore, Associated Press correspondent, who has just spent nearly two years in Moscow.)

By EDDY GILMORE

NEW YORK—(AP)—Vodka is the national firewater of Russia, but that doesn't mean that all that the Russians do is sit around and drink it, any more than Pennsylvanians just sit around and drink Pennsylvania rye.

Vodka has been associated with Russians for many, many years. The reason is very simple. Vodka is made from potatoes, the Russians have potatoes, and the Russians do not object to the taste of this drink which is made from the potato.

Russians, like Americans, are fond of banquets and dinners, and when the Russians have a banquet or a dinner there are many toasts. Right now the great majority of them are on the theme of lasting American-Russian friendship.

There is only one way to drink a toast in Russia—with vodka.

It is much simpler than you might think. Someone proposes a toast to something, and the first thing you know you're on your feet with a glass of vodka in your hand. You then clink glasses and knock back the whole glass in one swallow. Then you sit down and eat something, and I might add, the quicker the better.

Russians will never drink without eating, which I have discovered is a very sound theory. As a very wise Russian once said: "When you drink vodka, eat tobalsk cakes, they sop it up."

There have been some foreigners who, failing to follow sound Russian advice on how to drink vodka, have lost some bitter rounds to the spirit of the little white bottle.

I once saw a very eminent European novelist at a banquet down in the Don Cossack country. He had failed to match his drinking with his eating. After the meal he asked for some air and a Red army man kindly helped him out.

This eminent author took several large draughts of it (air) and then turned to go back into the house.

"Where is it?" he asked in open mouthed amazement despite the fact it was broad daylight and he was less than ten feet away.

"The door?" said the Red army man, "why, here it is."

"Door, nothing," answered the eminent author, "I'm looking for the house."

Vodka is not easy to get in Russia right now. The factories are turning out more essential things for war, but vodka, of course, is being turned out. It is regularly issued to the army.

At an army anti-aircraft station one time I saw a very hardy Australian newspaperman, one of the quietest, most dignified men I know, lose a very bad round to the little spirit.

It was after a banquet of about 15 toasts. The attraction was an entertainment put on by the soldiers. The first scene was a play in which a Russian played the part of a German officer.

It was too realistic for the vodka-fortified Australian. He rose in his chair and ran for the stage, shaking his fists and yelling, "Lemme at that German!"

Lots of soldiers would have been sore, but not the Russians. They were convinced they had been good hosts. They laughed and quietly led their noisy guest back to his seat.

On other occasions vodka makes you sad. Oh, so very sad.

That's when you try to sing Russian gypsy songs and get the words all wrong and the tune worse. And again your hosts don't get sore. They understand the spirit of the little white bottle. They've known him a long, long time.

Soprano Halts Career to Go In War Plant

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y.—(U.P.)—Blond, golden-voiced Ellen Cegles, who once was a mute, has interrupted her long struggle for recognition in the musical world, to join a bigger battle—the war against the Axis.

Ellen, who for the greater part of her life has been perfecting her singing voice in the face of misfortune, is now working as a typist in a war plant, the Carborundum Co. And her efforts for personal fame and fortune are taking a backseat to her contribution to the war effort.

When she was a child, a fall from a viaduct resulted in her tongue being severed. Eighteen stitches were required to heal it. As a result of the shock, her vocal cords became paralyzed.

For 11 years she was mute, until one day she tumbled from a piano stool and uttered a cry—the first indication that she might talk again.

Her beautiful singing voice was discovered by voice teachers, who worked tirelessly to restore her speaking ability. Since that time, the atractive lyric soprano has been a member of the Buffalo Civic Opera company, the Chicago Opera company and the International Grand Opera company of Rochester, N. Y.

LIQUOR PRICES BOOM ON GULF

SARASOTA—(U.P.)—Moonshine has hit an all-time high of $10 per gallon along the Florida gulf coast. Old-time 'shine toters' predict it may even go to $12 unless Prentiss Brown and the OPA muscle in with some ceiling prices that really put a damper on the increasing upward trend of fancy whisky prices.

A year and a half ago high-grade 'shine sold on an easy market for $1.25 per gallon—sometimes $2, if the buyer was a tourist. But with the war, the sugar restrictions, high prices on cornmeal, increasing number of revenue agents about, the boys in the hammocks are having a tougher time and prices reflect it.

To beat the sugar restriction some of the smart 'shine makers are growing their own sugar cane, making a molasses out of the sap and using that. Others are doing what they did in the colonial days—mixing their cornmeal with water and making their mash without sugar. Its slower but it packs a punch.

VODKA MAKES HOUSES JUST MELT AWAY!

Correspondent Reports It's Best To Eat When You Try Soviet National Drink.

(Editor's Note: A disappearing house and a threatening stage-German are some of the results produced by Vodka, Russia's national drink, says Eddy Gilmore, Associated Press correspondent, who has just spent nearly two years in Moscow.)

By EDDY GILMORE

NEW YORK—(AP)—Vodka is the national firewater of Russia, but that doesn't mean that all that the Russians do is sit around and drink it, any more than Pennsylvanians just sit around and drink Pennsylvania rye.

Vodka has been associated with Russians for many, many years. The reason is very simple Vodka is made from potatoes, the Russians have potatoes, and the Russians do not object to the taste of this drink which is made from the potato.

Russians, like Americans, are fond of banquets and dinners, and when the Russians have a banquet or a dinner there are many toasts. Right now the great majority of them are on the theme of lasting American-Russian friendship.

There is only one way to drink a toast in Russia—with vodka.

It is much simpler than you might think. Someone proposes a toast to something, and the first thing you know you're on your feet with a glass of vodka in your hand. You then clink glasses and knock back the whole glass in one swallow. Then you sit down and eat something, and I might add, the quicker the better.

Russians will never drink without eating, which I have discovered is a very sound theory. As a very wise Russian once said: "When you drink vodka, eat tobalsk cakes, they sop it up."

There have been some foreigners who, failing to follow sound Russian advice on how to drink vodka, have lost some bitter rounds to the spirit of the little white bottle.

I once saw a very eminent European novelist at a banquet down in the Don Cossack country. He had failed to match his drinking with his eating After the meal he asked for some air and a Red army man kindly helped him out

This eminent author took several large draughts of it (air) and then turned to go back into the house.

"Where is it?" he asked in open mouthed amazement despite the fact it was broad daylight and he was less than ten feet away.

"The door?" said the Red army man. "why here it is"

"Door, nothing," answered the eminent author, "I'm looking for the house"

Vodka is not easy to get in Russia right now. The factories are turning out more essential things for war, but vodka, of course, is being turned out. It is regularly issued to the army.

At an army anti-aircraft station one time I saw a very hardy Australian newspaperman, one of the quietest, most dignified men I know, lose a very bad round to the little spirit.

It was after a banquet of about 15 toasts. The attraction was an entertainment put on by the soldiers. The first scene was a play in which a Russian played the part of a German officer.

It was too realistic for the vodka-fortified Australian. He rose in his chair and ran for the stage, shaking his fists and yelling, "Lemme at that German!"

Lots of soldiers would have been sore, but not the Russians. They were convinced they had been good hosts They laughed and quietly led their noisy guest back to his seat.

On other occasions vodka makes you sad Oh, so very sad

That's when you try to sing Russian gypsy songs and get the words all wrong and the tune worse. And again your hosts don't get sore. They understand the spirit of the little white bottle. They've known him a long, long time.

Soprano Halts Career to Go In War Plant

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y.—(U.P.)—Blond, golden-voiced Ellen Cegles, who once was a mute, has interrupted her long struggle for recognition in the musical world, to join a bigger battle—the war against the Axis.

Ellen, who for the greater part of her life has been perfecting her singing voice in the face of misfortune, is now working as a typist in a war plant, the Carborundum Co. And her efforts for personal fame and fortune are taking a backseat to her contribution to the war effort.

When she was a child, a fall from a viaduct resulted in her tongue being severed. Eighteen stitches were required to heal it. As a result of the shock, her vocal cords became paralyzed.

For 11 years she was mute, until one day she tumbled from a piano stool and uttered a cry—the first indication that she might talk again.

Her beautiful singing voice was discovered by voice teachers, who worked tirelessly to restore her speaking ability. Since that time, the atractive lyric soprano has been a member of the Buffalo Civic Opera company, the Chicago Opera company and the International Grand Opera company of Rochester, N. Y.

LIQUOR PRICES BOOM ON GULF

SARASOTA— (U.P.) —Moonshine has hit an all-time high of $10 per gallon along the Florida gulf coast. Old-time 'shine toters' predict it may even go to $12 unless Prentiss Brown and the OPA muscle in with some ceiling prices that really put a damper on the increasing upward trend of fancy whisky prices.

A year and a half ago high-grade 'shine sold on an easy market for $1.25 per gallon—sometimes $2, if the buyer was a tourist. But with the war, the sugar restrictions, high prices on cornmeal, increasing number of revenue agents about, the boys in the hammocks are having a tougher time and prices reflect it.

To beat the sugar restriction some of the smart 'shine makers are growing their own sugar cane, making a molasses out of the sap and using that. Others are doing what they did in the colonial days—mixing their cornmeal with water and making their mash without sugar. Its slower but it packs a punch.

MOTHER ADOPTS SEVEN

PALO ALTO, Cal.—(U.P.)—Mrs. Marian Sise, already mother of four children, has adopted seven more. They range in age from 2 years to a 20-year-old corporal and a 19-year-old private in the army. Mrs. Sise was recently bereaved of her sister and her husband.

RELATES STORY OF JOURNEY TO BATTLE FRONTS

Eve Curie's 'Journey Among Warriors' on New Book List at City Library.

Having established herself as a writer with the biography of her mother, Eve Curie has published a new book, JOURNEYY AMONG WARRIORS, the story of her trip from Free France to the far-flung battle fronts. The book is among the new volumes to be added to the shelves at the Mansfield Public Library Saturday.

Traveling from France to England, to New York to Africa, to Iran, to Moscow, to Kuibyshev, to China, to India she talked with such men as Nehru, Chiang Kai-Shek, Chennault, Gandhi, Cripps and Wavell. And out of her trip the author has brought a document at once human, analytical and inspiring.

THEY ALSO RAN by Irving Stone is the story of the men who were defeated for the presidency—nineteen men who suffered an identical fate and whose lives provide a high powered and amusing lens with which to judge the standards of our times. They present a survey of a neglected and little-known aspect of the history of American politics; and it presents colorful portraits of the men who ran but were not elected.

BOOM COPPER: THE STORY OF THE FIRST U. S. MINING BOOM by Agnus Murdock is a popularly written, anecdotal history of the mining boom in the 1840s on the Keweenaw Peninsula of Upper Michigan.

A new reference book which should prove to be extremely useful is being added to the library collection this week. WAR WORDS by W. Cabell Greet is a timely, authoritative guide to the pronunciation of names in the news. Each entry is respelled two ways: first in a simplified Websterian alphabet, then phonetically without special markings, so that the pronunciation is self-evident. There is also included general notes on the pronunciation of names in the various foreign languages.

Other non-fiction includes: AMERICA'S FIGHTING PLANES IN ACTION, Kinert; ECUADOR, Franklin; FREMONT: PATHMARKER OF THE WEST, Nevins; WOOD TECHNOLOGY, Tiemann; THE HOME VETERINARIAN'S HANDBOOK, Baker; FOOD PROCESSING, Duncan; MAKING THE MOST OF YOUR PERSONALITY, Richmond; THE HOME MECHANIC, Tuomey; CAREERS IN RETAILING FOR YOUNG WOMEN, McFerran; PRAYER, Buttrick.

THE GOLDEN FEATHER by Theda Kenyon is an exciting historical romance that sweeps through the colorful and violent reign of Charles I and then across the sea to the Potomac plantations and New England. A lusty tale of love and high adventure against a background of political and religious oppression, it tells, in particular, the story of Clarissa Brinton and Gerald and Ajax Stacy—of their many adventures—until, in the New World, despite famine, massacres and plague, they find ultimate freedom.

JOSHUA MOORE, AMERICAN by George F. Hummel is a novel of a man who typifies in himself and his descendents the American dream. It presents the development of America as seen through the eyes of the first Joshua Moore who, landing on Long Island, has a clear vision of what America could and would become. Beginning with a colorful picture of those early times on the Eastern seaboard, the reader is given an exciting and significant picture of this country's formative years, followed by a panorama of it's development as the various Joshuas cope with the problems of their separate ages.

CELIA'S HOUSE by D. E. Stevenson, author of "Miss Buncle," is a pleasant story of a house and its influence on the lives of the people who live in it. When old Celia Dunne came to die in 1905, she willed her house to her grandnephew with the understanding that he should have a daughter Celia to inherit the house. So, in 1910 along came Celia and the story covers the years from Celia's birth to the present.

Other fiction includes: THE WHOLE HEART, Howe; THE YELLOW OVERCOAT, Acre; MR. FORTUNE FINDS A PIG, Bailey.

SOLDIERS WHIP DISEASE HAZARD

Crandall, recently invalided home after serving 8½ months in the South Pacific theater, said U. S. Army medical corps was ridding the islands of mosquitoes as a first step in reducing spread of disease. The corps was much better situated now to care for sick and wounded men than at the beginning of the campaign, he said.

VICTORY OMENS GREET MARINES

SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC (Delayed)—(U.P.)—Marine Sgt. Irwin S. Bradford of Laurel, Miss., tells of a spectacular double omen of victory which greeted the first raising of the Stars and Stripes by a Marine corps unit here. As colors sounded, a cloud formation split the rays of the sunrise into a gigantic "V".

Then to the strains of the national anthem, a flock of geese in perfect "V" formation appeared in the east, and as if directed by unseen hands, changed course to fly directly over the flagpole.

Try to Settle Differences Among French

Blind Teacher Trains Soldiers In Weather Lore

PHILADELPHIA—(INS)—Though blind since the age of two, Thomas A. Benham, Haverford college physics instructor, is doing his share for the war effort.

The 28-year-old teacher, always accompanied by his faithful German shepherd dog, Hattie, instructs two groups of 25 soldiers in a premeteorology course. These men, following their training, will become weather officers in the United States army air forces.

Benham, who is married, likes to work in the physics laboratory where he points with pride to a milliammeter he constructed which contains figures in Braille.

His wife does all his reading for him and helps him mark his students' test papers.

"Tom has a remarkable memory and a wonderful mental picture of everything," she said. "I have to read it only once and he remembers it. I don't know anything about physics but I'm learning."

Benham can speak French and German fluently. Besides his two army courses, he supervises projects for advanced students in electricity, radio and allied subjects and conducts regular university classes.

"Being blind isn't a handicap," Benham says. "It's an inconvenience."

"I got a letter from your cousin," I informed Golfer Joe Mayer.

"You mean Al Hager?" he queries.

"Yeah," I respond.

"Whaddaya mean, his cousin?" breaks in Golfer Matz Fisher. "He's my cousin too. In fact we are all cousins to each other."

After this war is over, don't be surprised if we have a new golf league around here. The "Cousins of Joe Mayer" league. The Mayer of Stocking avenue should like that.

So here's the letter from Golfer Al Hager:

Hi Rex—How's the Old Podger these bright sunny days? You are? That's great.

At the present I am on mess duty for 30 days. After that we fire our big guns on the ocean beach for 30 days, and then WAIT to be shipped out.

At Parris Island we were bothered by sand fleas, but here we have to fight the flies and mosquitos. And the sun is hot every day.

Mansfield looked pretty dead when I was home, but it seemed pretty good to see the old place again.

I got out my clubs the day I got home and tried to swing them. Felt like an old rusty gate. The clubs were so light they felt like a stick in my hands.

Well, Rex, I had better be running along now, because I have to go back to the mess hall We work from 14 to 16 hours a day, so you can see I haven't much time to myself.

Take it easy, Rex, and tell everyone at home to keep their chins up.

So long, Al.

Which reminds me that when Lt. Johnny Hallabrin was home from New River, he intended to stop off at Fort Bragg on his way back and see his brother, Freddie, who, you'll remember, earned the name "Fearless Fingerless Freddie," when a sergeant bit his finger during a scuffle in a southern camp.

But John didn't get to see Fearless Freddie. Came the word that Freddie's address was being changed.

Later came a letter from Freddie in Africa, in which he reported:

"Funniest thing I've seen over here was a little native boy singing: 'Deep In the Heart of Texas'."

Track Stars Turn Out for Big Meet

NEW YORK —(INS)— World-famous track and field stars continued to pour into New York today from all over the country in preparation for the 55th annual National AAU championships to be held here Saturday and Sunday.

Among those expected sometime today are Harrison Packard, 400-meter ace of George Pepperdine college and Cliff Borlund, defending 400-meter title-holder of the University of Southern California.

Five junior title-seekers are expected from Los Angeles today to begin their pre-contest training. They are hurdler Al Lawrence and sprinter Sam Meyers from Glendale high, sprinter Mel Patton from University high, miler Roland Sink from South Pasadena high and shot-putter Jerry Shipkey from Anaheim high.

Meantime earlier arrivals spent most of their time working-out at New York's athletic fields.

The Saturday event will feature the American debut of the sensational Swede, Gundar Haegg, who will compete against a strong field in the 5,000 meter run.

FIVE IN A ROW

PORTSMOUTH, Va.—(AP)—The first Piedmont league pitcher to win five games this season was Irving Stein, of the Portsmouth Cubs, who won five straight without a defeat. Three of his triumphs were shutouts. Last year, Stein pitched for Charleston, S. C., of the South Atlantic league.

Vandy Defeats St. Louis

Celebrates Anniversary of Double No-Hitter.

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—Johnny Vander Meer of the Cincinnati Reds looked back on a victorious "anniversary" game today even though it was far from resembling the successive no-hitters that gave him fame.

Granting the St. Louis Cardinals five hits, Johnny led the Reds to a 4-1 win in an 11-inning game last night. It was on June 15, 1938, that Vandy shut-out the Brooklyn Dodgers, holding them hitless, just as he had humbled Boston at Cincinnati four days before.

But the anniversary contest was touch-and-go for quite a while. The Champion Cards scored first in the fourth on an error, and W. Cooper's double. Cincinnati evened the score in the fifth as Tipton walked and Mueller doubled, and there matters hung until the Reds broke loose in the eleventh. McCormick and Mesner singled and Miller doubled to break the ice, and Vandy himself singled to bring in the final run.

It took Vandy three hours and five minutes to win his sixth game of the season, and incidentally, stop Harry Walker's hitting streak at 22 games and topple him from the league batting leadership. He rang up nine strikeouts.

DOUBLE HEADER

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians oppose the Detroit Tigers in their first twilight-night doubleheader of the season this evening.

Postponement of the series opener for the second time yesterday caused the Tribe management to schedule the twin bill.

Sees Daring Football Play

Anything Can Happen This Fall, Says Bible.

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

AUSTIN, Tex.—(AP)—There will be no danger of over-coaching in college football next season. So says Dana X. Bible, the veteran University of Texas mentor, who takes the view that the boys will not have much time for athletics and "we certainly will not go through long drills on fundamentals."

"There is a big question as to whether the military groups will have time to take part in intercollegiate athletics," he said. "If they do have some free time, we certainly should not use all of it in hard grind. We shall have our practices short, snappy and as interesting as possible."

But he thinks the game will have a lot of color. "You can just about expect anything to happen," Bible commented. "In other words, it will be more or less wide open—rather daring."

He also anticipates good attendance at games played in the thickly-populated areas.

"There is plenty of money in circulation and I think these games will be well-attended," he explained. "But there is not going to be the intense interest of other years, and with the people wanting to cooperate in regard to travel and with rationing of gasoline, tires, etc., I don't believe people from a distance will come to the games."

He thinks attendance will hold up at Austin, Houstin, Dallas and Fort Worth but says: "I would imagine places like College Station (where Texas A. and M. is located) and Fayetteville, Ark. (site of the University of Arkansas) would be pretty hard hit."

Bible definitely believes football should be carried on in wartime. "I just don't believe there is any training with the exception of military tactics that prepares a boy more perfectly for the armed forces than a vigorous competetive program," he asserted.

Commenting on the prospective size of squads next fall, he said the schools will get their players from army and navy groups sent back for special courses, from reservists not called to active service, and from boys under the draft age.

An announcement recently from Capt. John J. London, commandant of naval units at the university, indicated that V-12 trainees will be able to participate in football—even on road trips. Capt. London said these trainees may take short out-of-town trips and that leaves may be extended in emergencies or on special conditions.

The Southwest conference has passed a rule permitting trainees to participate in intercollegiate athletics.

TALBERT FAVORED

DETROIT —(UP)— Bill Talbert, Cincinnati tennis star, was installed as favorite today to capture the National Clay Courts Tennis championships after an easy victory over Kimbark Peterson, ranking Detroit player, 6-1, 6-4, 6-2.

Lt. Mac Saxon, former coach and athletic director of Texas college of Mines now is at U. S. Naval Air station, Banana River, Fla.

Utah Freshman, Only 17, New U. S. High Jump Champion

New national collegiate high jump champion, Fred Sheffield, 17-year-old University of Utah freshman, shows you how he gets over the bar at 6 feet 8 inches, which is the height he won the N. C. A. A. title at Chicago. Sheffield, also a good basketball player, went to Chicago on funds subscribed by home towners at Kaysville when the University of Utah declined to send him. He arrived in Chicago two hours before his event. He is entered in the A. A. U. events in New York, June 19-20.

Greco Barred On Ring Date

Canada Refuses To Grant Permission.

By JACK CUDDY

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — Another tempest in a pugilistic tea pot has blown an excellent service boxer out of competition—Pvt. Johnny Greco of the Canadian army, who was moving rapidly toward the lightweight championship.

Because of criticism that followed Greco's 10-round bout with Terry Young at Montreal May 8, Canadian defense headquarters at Ottawa said yesterday that Greco had been refused permission to go through with his non-title bout against lightweight champion Bob Montgomery on June 25 at New York's Yankee stadium. It was hinted that Greco would do no more professional boxing for the duration.

Boxing must take the rap for the Canadian army's action, just as it took the rap when U. S. Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson ordered cancellation of the Joe Louis-Billy Conn heavyweight title bout last September. However, in neither case did men connected with boxing cause the sparks that actually touched off the explosions

We were in Montreal for the Greco-Young fight in May. Actual cause of the criticism was the unexpectedly small gate of approximately $19,000 at the forum. Lieut. Col. Arthur G. White of the Canadian army, who had charge of promoting the bout, expected a gate of more than $50,000. Accordingly, he promoted in big-time fashion.

Because the Canadian army received only $3,000 some of the Canadian sports writers began criticizing the promotion. Unfortunately a behind-the-scenes wrangle over Greco's contract added fuel to the flames. The New York brothers, Abe and Murray Elkins, disputed with Pete Audette of Montreal over the right to cut Greco's purse.

We still are unable to understand the original criticism of the Canadian army's $3,000 take. Lieut. Col. White emphasized before the bout that the army was not primarily interested in making money for its athletic fund. It was promoting the bout (1) to stimulate recruiting (2) to help civilian and service morale, and (3) to help good will between Canada and the United States.

Had it drawn the expected $50,000, it unquestionably would have been hailed as a great success—devoid of criticism. But a poor gate started the criticism.

Women Employed As Track Clerks

CAMDEN, N. J. —(INS)— If the "little woman" hasn't said much about her new job, maybe you'd better be careful should you go near Garden State park's mutuel windows on or after opening day July 7.

For general track manager Walter H. Donovan today revealed that at least 50 women will be employed as mutuels clerks, sellers and cashiers during the 50-day meeting ending September 11.

* * *

"Old line mutuels workers won't like the idea, but Uncle Sam is taking the men," Donovan commented. "I've always kept an open mind about the ladies, and, besides, the gals are doing most everything the boys formerly did anyway."

Industrial Loop Tilts Postponed

All softball games in Industrial league were washed out by last night's rain. These games will be played off at a future date as soon as possible.

Meanwhile the Junior Softball league has been organized and play will start on Monday, June 21. Seven teams have been entered and the officials of the league are looking for an eighth team.

* * *

Teams are Prospect, Johns, Paul's Maple Lake, Brinkerhoff, Empire Steel and South Boulevard Midgets. Boys must be under 16 for this league.

Sport Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—Since that celebrated war bond auction of baseball players, the fans have acquired some new material to burn the umpire's ears. . . . Mel Ott contributed a $5,000 double and a $10,000 homer against the Dodgers Tuesday before Larry Goetz chased him out of the game for a two-bit protest. . . . And you can imagine some of the things the patriotic customers called Larry. . . . Charles Ornstein, A. A. U. bigwig and a local hotelman, refused to have any part of that $1,000 a page advertising in the program for the national track championships, but he bought $150 worth of tickets and sent them to Halloran hospital, where a lot of boys are recuperating from wounds received in North Africa.

GLOBAL THINKING

Question overheard in the marine barracks at the naval operating base, Norfolk, Va., during the Beau Jack-Bob Montgomery fight broadcast. "How can the New York State commission rule who is world champion when their part of the world is limited by the boundaries of New York State?" . . . The answer, of course, is that officially the commission only rules whose title claim it will accept, but that carries a lot of weight with guys whose world is limited to West 19th street.

SCRAP COLLECTION

Tip: Lew Fonseca, former American league batting champion, says that one reason why the hitters improve after July 4 is that during the hot months the pitchers lose some of their stuff during the late innings while batters seldom tire.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Ben Epstein, Little Rock (Ark) Gazette: "Gunder Haegg, the Swedish runner, said that after an athlete turned 24 it's time to quit and become a sports writer. . . . When a sports writer turns 21, he ought to quit and run copy."

Bid for Pro Grid Teams

Four Applications For Franchises Made.

CHICAGO— (INS) —Prospects for the National Football league brightened mightily today with announcement that four applications for franchises may be filed at the two-day special meeting of the league starting Saturday.

This news offset to a considerable extent the gloom engendered by the defection of the Cleveland Rams a few months ago and yesterday's application of the Pittsburgh Steelers and Philadelphia Eagles for permission to combine their teams.

Two of the prospective franchise seekers are Don Ameche, movie star, and Ted Collins, manager of Kate Smith, radio singer. Collins made a bid for the Cleveland franchise recently but got nowhere.

Ameche, represented by a special agent, is seeking a franchise for Buffalo, N. Y., to be operative immediately.

Collins also would like to start operations this year but mentioned no city for his bid.

The other two expected to file applications for Frank E. Mandel, member of the Illinois Racing commission and cousin of Fred Mandel, owner of the Detroit Lions, and Arthur E. Ehlers, representing a Baltimore, Md., syndicate.

HAS OPERATION

CINCINNATI—(U.P.)—Warren C. Giles, general manager of the Cincinnati baseball club, was in Christ hospital today following an appendectomy last night.

Riverland Has Broken Hip

Winner of $100,000 May Be Destroyed.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Three doctors go into a huddle over Riverland's broken hip at Belmont today, and the chances are they'll order the immediate destruction of the "giant giant-killer" of the turf.

For five days, the huge bay gelding —a $6,000 bargain who has earned just under $100,000—has been suffering in his stall while Trainer Moody Jolley and Owner Harold Clark, the Miami hotel man, have waited for word from the insurance company. There's a $40,000 policy covering the huge son of Coldstream, and no company is tossing that kind of "cabbage" around without looking things over. But the three veterinarians have been called in for the official verdict today.

"The hip cap, where the hip bone joins the pelvic bone on a horse, was smashed last Saturday in the Carter handicap," Trainer Jolley explained. "The ground gave 'way under his hind legs just as he sprang from the gate, and that's probably where the injury occurred. I'm convinced he'll have to be destroyed."

* * *

If and when he goes, the million-dollar handicap division of 1943 loses one of its classier campaigners. One of the biggest horses on the American turf—he stands 17 hands—Riverland was most noted for his gaudy job of whipping both Whirlaway and Alsab in four days last fall.

Two-Ton Tony Bopped for Count

NEWARK, N. J. —(INS)— Two-ton Tony Galento, the roly-poly heavyweight who trains on beer, went down for the count and came up today with the booby prize.

Galento was handed three stitches in the head and arrested on charges of assault, battery, resisting arrest and disorderly conduct, plus—for good measure—a ticket for overtime parking.

Cause of the fighter's trouble was his refusal to put a nickel in a parking meter in front of his Orange, N. J., tavern where his wife's car was parked. Galento claimed he was the town's biggest tax payer and so relieved of petty tax problems.

* * *

Police differed and gave him a ticket. Tony then set on the officer and was only subdued with the aid of two cops and some fast work with a billy club.

Glorious Gloria's Professional Now

Glorious Gloria Cullen, the Nyack, N. Y., schoolgirl who holds more than 30 American swimming records, has turned professional and will tour as a featured performer of the Water Follies of 1943. Gloria, selected last year as the outstanding female athlete in the U. S., shattered all of Eleanor Holm's backstroke marks during her short career as an amateur swimmer.

FEATHERWEIGHT KING ENLISTS IN NAVY

HARTFORD, Conn. —(AP)— Little Willie Pep, who has been defeated only once in nearly 70 professional fights, was in trim today for the biggest battle of his career—as a member of Uncle Sam's navy.

Willie, who holds the New York Boxing Commission's version of the world featherweight championship, was sworn into the navy yesterday at the Hartford induction center.

New Sports Board Studied

FDR May Appoint Three-Man Committee.

By CHARLES MOLONY

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Roosevelt was reported by a prominint sports figure today to have decided on appointing a committee of one civilian and one representative each from the army and navy to attempt a solution of the war-born problems confronting organized sports.

* * *

This source who asked to remain anonymous said he had been told that the civilian under consideration was a man more closely identified in the past with political than sports circles.

The function of the trio he said would be to provide an official ear for the wartime plaints of the sporting world and to make recommendations to the president on what could be done to keep athletics going for the duration.

Both in and out of congress there has been agitation for an agency of this sort with some urging appointment of a sports coordinator or "Czar."

News of the committee-to-be followed organization yesterday of a federally-sponsored group to develop and promote a thoroughgoing program of physical fitness throughout the nation, with a special view to building up youth to meet draft standards and keeping war workers in top shape.

This committee, composed of 14 members, will rely on state and community organizations and schools and colleges to carry out suggested programs, as it has no directive authority, members said.

Its creator, Paul V. McNutt, who controls selective service as war manpower commissioner, is in excellent position to deal with sports' biggest wartime trouble—the loss of manpower to the draft, but members said the committee would ask no special draft deferment for athletes.

Representing professional sports on the committee is George M. Trautman, president of baseball's American Association, while the colleges are represented by Asa Bushnell, Ivy league chief, and John L. Griffith, the Big Ten commissioner.

Says Little Guy Can Pitch

O'Neill Likes Stubby Overmire's Delivery.

By WATSON SPOELSTRA

DETROIT —(AP)— Because of his stature, rookie southpaw Frank Overmire of the Detroit Tigers has been hailed as "another Dickie Kerr."

Your dad can tell you all about Dickie Kerr. He was a southpaw pitcher for the Chicago White Sox—and a 'good one—in the last war. Kerr was a little fellow five inches under the six-foot mark, and that's precisely the height of Overmire, a 14-game winner last year in the Texas league.

Manager Steve O'Neill of the Tigers batted against Kerr many times and he largely derives the credit for the development of Overmire, a home-grown product who cost the Tigers a scant $400. Overmire opened brilliantly with three American league victories. He has been defeated once.

"Another Dickie Kerr?" echoed the big Detroit manager. "Gee, I hope so. Kerr was a wonderful pitcher, but I think Overmire will go a long way, too. This boy has magnificent control and he throws what the batters call a sneaky fast ball. He's helping us a lot."

Two years ago Overmire finished an enormously successful pitching career at Western Michigan college, a little giant in midwestern baseball circles that dishes out more than it takes in competition with Big Ten schools of much larger enrollments. His record of 21 victories and five defeats was topped by a no-hitter in 1940 against Iowa State Teachers.

This performance normally would have gained Overmire some attention, but big league scouts were shunning places like Kalamazoo that spring in order to converge on Ann Arbor, where Dick Wakefield was smashing the University of Michigan to the Big Ten title. Wakefield, another Tiger rookie, got $52,000 for signing his contract.

But after signing Wakefield, Detroit's ace scout, A. J. (Wish) Egan, hustled out to corral Overmire, who was sent to Muskegon of the Michigan State league where he won 12 and lost four after a rocky start.

O'Neill first saw Overmire a year ago at Lakeland, Fla., where the Beaumont club of the Texas league trained. O'Neill was the new Beaumont manager.

"You say that boy has only class C experience?" said O'Neill to General Manager Jack Zeller of the Tigers as they watched Overmire. "Why he really knows how to pitch."

Overmire helped pitch O'Neill's club to the Texas league seasonal title and then followed his boss to Detroit.

Overmire packs 165 pounds on his compact frame and he naturally picked up the nickname of "Stub." He is 24 years old, married and has 4-F draft classification because of a hernia. He and Wakefield are roommates.

He's the smallest moundsman in the major leagues but next September he won't have the smallest victory total, O'Neill declares.

Trades Bring on New Life

Players Give All In Debut With New Mates.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

MAJOR league players will break a leg to make good on their first appearance with a new club.

At least Danny Litwhiler ran right into a wall at Sportsman's park in his debut with the world champion St. Louis Cardinals after being traded by the Philadelphia Phillies, and other players have shown just as strong an urge to make an impressive beginning in a new uniform.

Connie Ryan, the day after he was traded to the Boston Braves by the New York Giants, hit the first home run of his major league career to beat his former teammates. Conker Triplett bowed before his new followers at Philadelphia with a home run and a triple that beat the Braves.

These things have been going on for a long time and there were a couple of new chapters yesterday.

Rube Fischer, the rugged, right-handed pitcher whom the Giants had just brought up from their Jersey City farm in the International league was ordered out onto the mound at the Polo grounds against the Giants' bitter rivals, the Brooklyn Dodgers, and proceeded to pitch a seven-hit victory, 3-2, with the help of a two run homer by his manager, Mel Ott.

At the same time Babe Barna, a promising slugger whose batting average was insignificant with the Giants, donned a Boston Red Sox uniform and helped win a game from the Philadelphia Athletics for his new affiliates.

Barna hit a ninth-inning double and scored the deciding run to give Yank Terry a 3-2 decision over the A's.

The Dodgers' loss was their third in a row, longest losing streak of the season for Brooklyn, but it did not cost them any additional ground in the National league pennant chase because the Cardinals also were beaten, 4-11, in 11 innings by the Cincinnati Reds.

Johnny Vander Meer and Howie Pollet hooked up in a left handed hurling duel in which each allowed only four hits and one run for ten innings. Then the Reds made four hits in the top half of the 11th, including a two-run double by Eddie Miller, to sew up the victory.

* * *

The Phillies took their third straight from the Braves 2-0 with Si Johnson pitching masterful three-hit ball despite the fact that the game was interrupted for 45 minutes by a practice blackout in Philadelphia.

The Pittsburgh Pirates opened with a three-run blast in the first inning and whipped the Chicago Cubs 5-2.

The games at St. Louis, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia were all night contests and in addition the Washington Senators turned back the New York Yankees, American league leaders, under the floodlights of Griffith stadium.

The Senators were held to six hits, but Rookie Tommy Byrne had a spell of wildness in the eighth inning that helped them rally for five runs to win 3-3

The St. Louis Browns and Chicago White Sox split a doubleheader, the Sox dropping the first 5-2 and running their losing string to five games and then coming back to win the nightcap 9-0.

Detroit and Cleveland were weathered out again.

Brewers and Millers Tied

Battle Tonight For Second Place In AA Race.

(By Associated Press)

Minneapolis and Milwaukee, tied for second place and currently the hottest teams in the American Association race, turn their fire on each other tonight.

The meeting will be the first of a five-game series, which not only could end, momentarily at least, their second place feuding but might—propel one or the other into first place with a little help from Toledo.

While the two second place rivals are battling it out, Toledo will oppose league leading Indianapolis. The Indians hold a two and a half game edge in the pennant chase.

There was no league activity yesterday because of an open date but Kansas City beat the Great Lakes Naval Training Station, 1 to 0.

GOP Expected to Oppose World Collaboration Measure

'SIMMERING OFF' PERIOD BEING SOUGHT

Leaders Say There's No Hurry About Getting Congress on Record For Program.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Republican members of the house foreign affairs committee today were expected to try to block any move for immediate consideration of the Fulbright resolution to put congress on record in favor of world collaboration in peace.

Although they voted for the resolution in committee and urged its adoption in speeches on the house floor, they are recommending a "simmering off" period before house debate.

Chairman Sol Bloom, D., N. Y., of the house foreign affairs committee, however, said he had a "date", with the rules committee on Monday to obtain permission for immediate debate.

Bloom said his committee had twice unanimously instructed him to press for as speedy consideration as possible.

Rep. John M. Vorys, R., O., however, said:

"There is no disposition to press for immediate consideration. We believe in allowing a simmering off period. The committee studied this type of legislation for months; the membership should also be given an equal length of time to digest it."

"The resolution is just intended to open the door for discussion of post war aims," said Rep. Frances P. Bolton, R., O. "There is no hurry about it."

House Republican leader Joseph W. Martin, jr., of Massachusetts is not ready to express an opinion.

Thus far the only opposition expressed to the resolution has come from two Republicans. Rep. Jessie Sumner, R., Ill., warned members on the floor that adoption of the resolution might incite the country to revolt. Rep. Frederick C. Smith, R., O., charged that the resolution "played into the hands of those who want the United States to lose its sovereignty and become part of a superworld state."

The resolution endorses the setting up of international machinery to establish and maintain a "just and lasting peace" in which the United States would participate.

Several Republicans in addition to Mrs. Bolton and Vorys endorsed the resolution, including Rep. Hamilton Fish, R., N. Y., who voted consistently against administration foreign policy prior to Pearl Harbor.

100 Boy Scouts To Take Part In 'Rendezvous'

More than 100 scouts from the Johnny Appleseed area will join in the area "rendezvous" to be held Friday and Saturday at Camp Avery Hand, jr., located south of Ontario.

A highlight of the program will be the court of honor Friday at 8:30 p. m. At that time, four boys will become eagle scouts, highest honor in scout work. The presentation of the Hillier trophy to the troop which has shown outstanding advancement during the past year, and the president's cup, to the troop with the most new members, will be another feature.

The scouts are requested to bring their own food and camping equipment. The camp will open Friday noon and close Saturday afternoon. Boys from Shelby, Galion, Bucyrus, Crestline, Loudonville, Plymouth and Mansfield will attend.

U. S. APPROVES R-42 CHANGES

State Given 'Go-Ahead' on Resurfacing, Widening of S. Main, Lexington.

City officials were informed today that the federal government has authorized the state highway department to go ahead with resurfacing and widening South Main street and Lexington avenue. Contract for the work will be let July 13 by the state.

The city will participate with the state in financing the South Main-Lexington avenue project on U. S. Route 42 and State Route 13. Both routes will be resurfaced the entire distance south from Central park to the city limits and the intersection of the two streets will be widened. Traffic safety islands will be constructed at the intersection.

Included in the project is the resurfacing of Marion avenue between Glessner and Cline avenues and Park avenue west from Linden road to West Park drive.

Meanwhile, resurfacing of McPherson street under a separate project was completed yesterday by the Mansfield Ashalt Paving company which today started work on Hedges street, second of six thoroughfares which will be repaired under a project costing nearly $30,000.

MANSFIELDER GIVEN PENALTY

Gas Station Proprietor Draws 30-Day Business Suspension on Ration Violation.

First penalty imposed on a Mansfield filling station operator for failure to abide by the gasoline rationing regulations today was clamped on G. F. Schonauer, proprietor of a station at West Fourth street and Rowland avenue, who was forbidden by the OPA to sell gas from June 20 through July 19.

The penalty was imposed at Cleveland by Fred S. Glover, jr., chief OPA regional hearings commissioner.

Schonauer was charged with using between 300 and 400 gallons of gasoline from his station to supply used cars for demonstration purposes. A used car dealer, he also was accused of furnishing car purchasers with an initial supply of fuel and accepting loose ration stamps without checking motorists' books.

At the hearing before the OPA commissioner in Cleveland, he said he used gas from his station for the cars owned by him because he had difficulty obtaining rations for this purpose from the county ration board. He explained the discrepancy in his inventory was due to the alleged theft of a large number of ration stamps from his place of business.

DIDN'T CURTSY

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Theodore Wellman, 40, arraigned on a disorderly conduct charge, said a Long Island railroad policeman was not gentle in pulling him from the tracks in front of an approaching train.

"After all," said Magistrate Abner Surpless, "you don't have to be introduced by Emily Post before a policeman comes to your aid."

WINS GARDEN PRIZE FOR PEAS

Frank Honeberger, 786 Woodland road, today received the third and final victory garden award for peas, the garden committee announced today. First prize went to Charles Laser of Ganges, several weeks ago, and yesterday second award was presented to Russell Cahall, 325 West Third street.

Honeberger's peas were of the Little Marvel variety. He also won first prize for radishes several weeks ago.

It is likely beets and carrots will be the next vegetables to be received in the contest at the office of the county agricultural extension agent, George B. Ganyard.

AGAINST CUT

McGregor Says He'll Oppose Unwarranted Gas Curb.

Joining other midwestern congressmen in their protest against the extension of more rigid gasoline rationing to Ohio, Congressman J. Harry McGregor of the 17th district, told congress yesterday that he was "not going to agree to any program which will subject my people to additional hardship and inconvenience in order to make eastern motorists feel better."

The 17th district congressman, who represents Richland county in Washington, said he felt sure that if the additional sacrifice is necessary for the war effort, the people of Ohio were ready and willing to make the sacrifice, but they wanted to know the facts first.

"We will protest, however, if the facts show that we of the middlewest are going to be penalized because a few eastern states can't get all they want, a situation dependent a great deal upon transportation and not upon a lack of gasoline," Congressman McGregor said.

ARRIVE IN CITY

Navy Officers Here For Two Days of Recruiting.

Lieut. P. W. Silfies and Lieut. R. J. Yaeger are in Mansfield today to interview men interested in becoming commissioned officers with the U. S. navy. They will interview applicants today and tomorrow in the Farmers' Bank building from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m.

The officers, who came here from Zanesville, are seeking engineers, of all types.

Generally speaking, Lieut. Silfies said, a man must have a college degree in order to secure a commission in the navy. However, he said, this rule is frequently waived if a man has two years of college and five of outstanding experience, or ten years experience and no college background. He pointed out that men in war industry or federal offices are not being sought.

NAME BRUNNER AGAIN TO HEAD FUND GROUPS

Community War Chest Trustees Elect; Financial Report Given at Session.

Henry G. Brunner, chairman of the executive committee of the Community Chest and president of the War Chest, was re-elected to those positions last night at a meeting of the Community and War Chest trustees.

Also chosen to serve another year as officers of the executive committee were: Msgr. R. C. Goebel, vice chairman; Mrs. Tom Ford, secretary; and John W. Graham, treasurer.

Ruhland Isaly was elected to fill the vacancy on the executive committee left by the resignation of Robert C. Remy. Re-elected committee members are Brunner, J. H. Ashbaugh, John W. Cook, George L. Draffan, Clarence Fike, Mrs. Tom Ford, Msgr. Goebel, Graham, John Gross, Lewis Hartman, James M. Hill, Rev. A. L. Linder, V. H. Lodde, W. C. Meade, John G. Routzon, C. N. Shultz, George W. Stephens and Jane Williams, member ex-officio.

Hout, Lee Powell, Freh Huber, Brooks Huber and Rome E. McCracken were chosen to fill the five vacancies on the board of trustees.

Graham gave the treasurer's report from Jan. 1 to June 11 which indicated that 70.53 per cent of the pledges made in Mansfield, Shelby and Richland county have been collected.

Total pledges amounted to $164,489.50 including $149,367.92 from Mansfield, $12,642 from Shelby, and $2,479.58. Of this $115,201.37 has been collected and $812.52 cancelled. Up to June 11, 29.47 per cent or $48,475.61 of the pledges had not been collected.

Graham reported that $69,182.18 had been paid to Community Fund and War Chest agencies and $2,354.35 had gone into campaign expenses, leaving a balance of $44,477.36.

Msgr. Goebel, chairman, presented the code of operations drawn up by his committee. The code, under which the organization has been operating for some time, was unanimously approved by the board and a resolution passed approving everything done in the past under this code.

The board voted not to incorporate at this time after hearing a report from the committee on corporation.

Mrs. Williams, executive secretary, reported on the work during the past seven months which includes granting funds for six additional agencies not provided for under the original budget. She said that in the the future, War Fund collections will be made for the national organization rather than local agencies since the national organization will supply all funds needed by local groups over the entire country.

The secretary pointed out that five agencies which asked for funds had been refused because they are not on the recommended list made up by the trustees.

Now is the deal time to clear up all those scattered bills that have troubled you. With only one place to pay, you can organize your way out of debt on an orderly repayment schedule adjusted to fit your purse. Of course, we make small loans too. For instance, $20 for 30 days costs only 60c. But if you need as much as $200, $300, or even $450 or more, remember Interstate's new rate offers you a real reduction on your loan cost. "While you wait" service to those who phone ahead or present proper identification and evidence of employment.

SMALL GAINS PREDOMINATE IN MART LIST

Number of Leaders Register Fractional Advances; Few Drop.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Small fractional advances predominated in today's early stock market proceedings.

On the upside at a quiet opening were Texas Co., Baltimore & Ohio, Glenn Martin, Briggs Mfg. Union Carbide, Southern Pacific, Chrysler and Johns-Manville. Minor declines were posted for Bethlehem, Generol Motors and Chesapeake & Ohio.

CHICAGO —(AP)— Expansion of the harvesting area in the southwest inspired a little selling in grains at the outset today and prices eased small fractions.

Wheat started ¼ to ⅜ lower, July $1.3½, September $1.43⅝-½, and rye was unchanged to ⅜ lower, July 96¾.

AIRPORT FUND UP FOR STUDY

the finance committee, said the committee would seek the advice of City Auditor Paul L. Kelley and Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner before reaching a decision about the possible transfer of city surplus funds for the purchase of airport land. Other members of the committee are Charles N. Shultz and Michael Mihalick, Second and Fourth ward councilmen respectively.

Mayor Locke said city officials would look into the possibility of issuing bonds within the 10-mill tax limitation to provide at least a part of the money for the land purchase.

Despite a surplus in excess of $600,000 reported by the Ohio Chamber of Commerce in a recent survey; the mayor said it will be no simple matter to appropriate as much as $100.000 for buying airport land. That amount has been mentioned as the probable cost of the necessary land.

"Much of the surplus the city is supposed to have is in funds earmarked for specific operations and it can't be shifted from one fund to the other to suit our needs," the mayor said. "Besides, the city will have spent more than $200,000 of the reported surplus by the end of this year for street, sewer, and other improvements," he added.

Civil Aeronautics authority engineers said yesterday they would be in the city within two weeks to select the airport site and give city officials a picture of what will be needed.

THEATERS

Continues at Ohio.

Hunt Stromberg's "Lady of Burlesque," adapted for the screen from Gypsy Rose Lee's best selling novel, "G-String Murders," continues today at the Ohio. Seen in the top roles are Barbara Stanwyck and Michael O'Shea. Miss Stanwyck plays the part of Dixie Daisy, champion of the midwest "take off" circuit who arrives in New York to open an engagement at the Old Opera. O'Shea furnishes the laughs throughout the picture as he attempts to solve a mysterious murder. Barbara's New York debut is darkened by a police raid, and other complications.

Morris-Parker.

Chester Morris and Jean Parker are again romantically interested in each other in their new Paramount picture, 'High Explosive," now at the Madison, with Barry Sullivan, newcomer to the screen, forming the third part of the triangle. The film, produced by William Pine and William Thomas, has to do with nitroglycerine and the men who deliver it to where it is needed in the present war work program. Brenda Joyce and Richard Travis are starred in the co-attraction, "The Postman Didn't Ring."

Compliment.

The classic gag around the Walt Disney studio is the one about the lady who remarked when leaving a theater after seeing "Bambi," "I don't see how Mr. Disney trains all those animals to do such remarkable things." And the lady might not be so far off, according to advance reports on the picture which opens today at the Park. "Bambi" is the story of adventure and romance, told through the medium of animals living in a forest. Other Park picture is "Underground Agent."

"Riders of the Rio Grande," Republic picture starring Bob Steele, Tom Tyler and Jimmie Dodd as the "Three Mesquiteers," makes its bow at the Ritz today. The picture has as its background the struggle between two rival frontier towns, and concerns the efforts of the "Mesquiteers" to track down a gang of cut-throat outlaws. As in previous films, Steele enacts the role of Tucson Smith, Tyler that of Stony Brooke, and Jimmie Dodd that of Lullaby Joslyn. The story of a group of ex-convicts and their attempt to make good after their release from prison is told in the other Ritz offering "City of Silent Men."

TURKEY BREAKS WITH VICHYITES, ALGIERS CLAIMS

tain parts of Bessarabia and Bukovina.

Britain has two formidable armies, the Ninth and Tenth encamped in Syria and it was understood that the closing of the frontier was undertaken to prevent any information on the action of these forces from reaching Germany.

The British embassy at Ankara said that a "strong guard" had been posted along the border of Turkey and Syria and that the Turkish general staff and the government had been formally notified of the move.

Anti-Nazis Speak Out In Balkans

CAIRO—(AP)—Increasing resistance by opposition groups within Axis satellite countries of southeastern Europe, a situation which Nazi authorities apparently are handling with unusual liberality, was reported today in information reaching Cairo.

Underground leaders in collaborationist Rumania and Bulgaria are becoming more and more outspoken, it was said, and in Bulgaria, where many elements have strong ties with the Soviet, there has been a resurgence of the old "mother Russia" sentiment.

The extent to which disaffected groups in Rumania are permitting themselves to give voice to their dissatisfaction was indicated in a recent speech by Baron Manfred von Killinger, German minister to Bucharest.

"We laugh at all these dwarfs," he declared, "these anti-Germans, politicians who are nothing but talkative loafers, Jews, pro-Jews and those who are servants of Jews."

Then he added: "All these must take care . . . our patience will end."

Some quarters here expressed the view that the various underground movements may be moving too fast for their own good, for German technique frequently has been to allow the opposition sufficient rope to hang itself.

The ideal movements for the Allies, it was pointed out, are those which would reach their peak at the moment of invasion of Europe.

Blow-Up In OWI Predicted By Unofficial Capital Source.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Look for a major personnel blow-up in the Office of War Information (OWI) soon—involving Director Elmer Davis, one of his top executives and maybe even the White House.

That was the word today from D. C. Speaker, strictly unofficial but well-informed District of Columbia news source

"Ironically," said D. C., the mythical capital spokesman who represents authentic but unquotable sources, "the row is coming to a climax right after a speech by Davis in which he inferentially decried giving too much attention to personal squabbles in our war agencies."

(At Boston, Monday, Mr Davis suggested that reporters at Washington might be making too much of the various capital controversies.)

Delivers More Babies In Ohio In '42 Than Ever Before.

COLUMBUS — (U P) — State Health Director R H Markwith reported today that 143,610 babies were born in Ohio in 1942 setting a new all-time record The birth rate itself was not the highest on record because of Ohio's population increase. The 1942 birth rate of 20.6 per thousand was exceeded each year from 1916 to 1924.

Meanwhile, Ohio counted 77,490 deaths in 1942, 35 fewer than in 1941

OPA STUDIES USE OF METAL TOKENS IN RATIONING SYSTEM

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Ration tokens instead of ration stamps appeared as a possibility today following the first public airing by the Office of Price Administration of an idea that "has been under discussion for some time."

The tokens would be of non-critical, but tough, material.

Under the token plan, paper ration stamps would be issued in large denominations, one stamp being worth an entire month's allowance of rationed food. When a consumer makes the initial purchase of a ration period tokens would be given as change for the stamp. For the remainder of the period tokens would be the "currency" used in making rationed purchases.

As described by OPA officials at a meeting Tuesday of retailers and wholesalers, tokens would relieve store operators of the volume of "paper" attached to the present system and speed transactions in stores.

OPA spokesmen emphasized that the idea of tokens is only "nebulous."

been stepping up their operations in that vital area which is within striking distance of the important enemy bases around Rabaul, New Britain and the northern Solomons.

During the past few weeks, the Japanese have been sending between 40 and 60 fighter planes and bombers against American positions in the Solomons but in every case the enemy has been turned back with terrific losses.

The latest navy report came a half hour after an announcement that American planes had carried out two heavy raids against Japanese positions in the central Solomons.

The earlier communique also reported that speedy new Ventura medium bombers had carried out another attack against Japanese-held Kiska in the Aleutians, scoring hits on the main camp area along the runway and among anti-aircraft batteries.

Forecasts Quick Collapse of Japs

LONDON —(AP)— H. V Evatt, Australian minister for external affairs, expressed the belief today that Japan would collapse quickly after Adolf Hitler is defeated and said "the certainty of the enemy's defeat applies to the Pacific as well as to Europe."

Evatt said he believed that by the economical employment of the increasing Allied resources the "interval between the defeat of Hitler and the defeat of Japan can be made short, if indeed there need be any interval at all."

Short Beers Seen As Brewers Find Malt Supply Cut

COLUMBUS —(INS)— It looks like a short beer is going to be the order of the day and will in all probability get shorter as the summer rolls by.

Some Ohio dispensers reported today that they are selling out these hot nights while retailers are already limiting the number of carry-out bottles to customers.

A shortage in the variety of out-of-state brands of beer, which are not coming in because of trucking restrictions already is noticeable. Government restrictions on malt supplies to larger breweries is causing the brewers no little worry. Small breweries are allowed the same amount they had last year while larger breweries face a 7 per cent cut in malt supplies

His statement represented a 25 per cent drop below the $16 000,000,000 new taxes goal set by President Roosevelt early this year.

Militia Restores Order After Race Rioting In Texas

Negro district, burned homes, dragged Negroes from their automobiles and set fire to the cars.

The windows of many homes were smashed by rocks, Negro shops and business places were looted and damaged, and Negro shanties were wrecked

The city was quiet last night, and production at the shipyards, which had been disrupted in the rioting, was restored almost to normal, although no Negro employes had been called back to work.

The dead white man was Ellis Cleveland Brown, 55. He died yesterday of a skull fracture after a group of negroes slugged him while he was walking down the street. John Johnson, a negro, died of gunshot wounds last night.

About 125 members of the mobs which invaded the Negro district were held in jail. Under martial law, they cannot be released under bond. Both city and county jails were kept under heavy guard and a barbed wire barrier was erected around police headquarters.

The Negro who assaulted the white woman had not been apprehended. The rioting began when mobs of white men formed to look for him and went to the jails to demand his release in belief he had been arrested.

Official Says Elk Hills Oil Deal Resembles Teapot Dome.

WASHINGTON— (AP) —The agreement between the navy and Standard Oil company of California for developing the Elk Hills oil reserve was termed "illegal and invalid" today by a justice department official.

This official, Assistant Attorney General Norman M. Littell, spoke at a house public lands committee hearing at which Rep. Elliott (D-Calif.) said the deal had "something of the inkling of the Teapot Dome scandal of some years ago."

The contract called for payment of $1 748,408 by the navy to the Standard Oil company in return for title and equipment on 8,2977 acres of land the company owns on the Elk Hills reserve for the duration of the war but for a period of not less than five years blue pennant," he told the employes, "think of the lads in these two services who are depending on you to furnish the materials for them to fight with."

Speaking in behalf of the employes, Ralph Farley, president of the Independent Employes association, said the award would stimulate them to greater effort.

"We can't forget our sons, brothers, and husbands in the firing line and we won't," he declared.

Major Albert C. Crawford, 5th Service Command, Ft. Hayes, Columbus, the army's representative, presented the individual pins awarded each worker to Farley, Harry Harbeson, who has been in the continuous employ of the plant for 53 years, Dorcas Bertsch, and Glenn Charles, president of the International Molders union

Both the American and "E" flags were raised on poles at either side of the platform by four WAVES from the Cleveland field branch of the navy bureau of supplies and accounts acting as a color guard. Appropriate to the fact that the award was recommended by navy department, the Senior high band played the stirring "Anchors Aweigh" during the raising of the "E" flag. The band, under the direction of J. Merton Holcombe, opened the program with "The Star Spangled Banner" and accompanied the audience in singing "America."

Flags and bunting marked the lot opposite the plant where the ceremonies were held and decorated the speaker's platform. Flags of the United Nations formed a backdrop for the platform.

In special caps for the occasion, the employes were seated in the center section reserved for them. At the completion of the ceremony they filed by twos through the two gates where they were given their "E" pins by the WAVES.

Three planes which flew in formation over the grounds before the ceremonies set the stage for the presentation. Symbolic of the production of war materials for which the Tappan company was being honored, they were also a grim reminder of the war and the task which still lies ahead.

One of the most impressive parts of the ceremony was the parade of the employes in their red and blue caps inscribed with a souvenir noting of the occasion.

Tailored and chic the WAVES appeared for the first time in the Cleveland district in their white dress uniforms, offset with touches of blue on their caps and lapel insignia 25 Men Live on Cocoanut, Malted Milk and Biscuits.

PORTLAND, Ore —(AP)—Chilled by rains and seared by the sun, 25 men jammed in a small lifeboat from their torpedoed merchantman rode out the South Pacific swells for 15 days—until an army Flying Fortress spotted them as they were on the verge of starvation.

The story came today from George Atchison, 20-year-old navy seaman, first class, who returned home to await his next assignment

They spotted a floating cocoanut on the seventh day, he said, and carved it into 50 pieces, two for each man. Their normal daily ration was two biscuits and a malted milk tablet apiece.

In the European theater, while Rome and Berlin on prospects of the "zero hour" for an Allied invasion, the spotlight shifted momentarily from Sicily, Sardinia and Italy to the eastern Mediterranean and the Balkans.

A Berlin broadcast acknowledged that the Allies had "one hope of possible attack — in southeastern Europe," but asserted that "an invasion will prove a blood bath without precedent" and that "two-thirds of the landing force will be wiped out even before a decisive battle has been joined."

As for Hitler's vaunted Atlantic wall, stretching thousands of miles from southern France to Norway, the Nazi radio boasted it "may be considered impregnable."

In the Russian campaign, Soviet headquarters reported a series of clashes on the long-dormant Smolensk sector, west of Moscow, but on the whole the 1,500-mile battlefront remained strangely quiet.

With the steppes already baked hard in the hot June sun, Hitler's mechanized armies were apparently waiting to see what might happen in western and southern Europe before attempting a new drive to the east against Russia, and by the same token the Red armies were holding back their punch until the critical hour.

Latest reports indicated that the great summer battle, when it starts, will center in the Orel region, 200 miles south of Moscow, where both the Germans and Russians have been massing vast armies and supplies for weeks.

From Orel, Hitler might strike out in a new thrust to the northeast to swing around Moscow and lop off the deep Russian salient now pressing against Germany's Baltic defenses at Velikie Luki.

French Committee Reaches Accord

ALGIERS—(AP)—Thirteen members of the French national liberation committee, with Gen. Henri Giraud presiding, reached an agreement at an 80-minute meeting today on procedure and collective responsibility, it was announced.

Rene Massigli, commissioner of foreign affairs, informed the first plenary session of communications received from other governments concerning recognition of the committee as the provisional government of the French empire.

The committee began the first steps toward the creation of a "consultative assembly."

It was also announced that an exchange of views had taken place on the problems concerning the organization of French military forces, one of the principal causes of friction between Giraud and Gen. Charles De Gaulle.

Report Italians Withdraw Troops

NEW YORK —(AP)— A Moscow radio broadcast recorded by CBS said today that several incidents among the Italian garrisons of Sicaly and Sardenia had led the Italian high command to start withdrawing "its demoralized troops from the islands under the pretext that it is regrouping its forces."

The families of practically all members of the Mussolini government "are reported to have been evacuated to Hungary," the Soviet radio said.

Reports Yanks Got Over 85 Axis Planes

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Secretary of War Stimson disclosed today that 85, possibly 105, German fighter planes were destroyed by American and British fliers raiding Wilhelmshaven and Cuxhaven last Friday.

In those raids, in which he asserted heavy damage was caused to enemy industrial areas, the secretary added, that eight Flying Fortresses were lost. Preliminary reports had placed the Nazi air losses at 54 craft.

Stimson also reported that the capture of Pantelleria Lampedusa and two other small Mediterranean islands cost "only about 40 airmen and a few planes." He said "substantial numbers" of Axis prisoners were taken — at Pantelleria they totalled 11,135 and at Lampedusa "between 4,000 and 5,000."

from the sewers where Tempeny was trapped. Rescuers were spurred during the night by tappings from the underground compartment where the foreman was kept alive by oxygen pumped to him.

He was trapped by water which flooded the sewers during a cloudburst after he went back to make certain the compartment was sealed to prevent spread of the waters.

Weakened by the downpour, a retaining wall at the Benedictine high school in Cleveland collapsed, crushing eight automobiles in a garage and starting an apartment building fire. Damage was placed at $4,500. Flood waters covered tracks of the Pennsylvania and Nickel Plate railroads and two bridges were washed out in the East Cleveland area.

More than 100 trees were uprooted in a storm at Zanesville while Newark and Cincinnati reported widespread damage from wind and lightning. More than an inch of rain fell in little more than an hour at Newark where four homes were struck by lightning.

A bolt of lightning stunned two dairy workers and knocked down 27 cows at the Michael Sachs farm near Newark. None of the animals were killed.

The widespread storms dropped the mercury to 68 degrees in Mansfield last night and the temperature stood at a comparatively cool 78 at noon today. Yesterday's high was 82.

More scattered showers and a further drop in temperature were forecast for this afternoon and tonight in northern Ohio.

Farmer Raises Tree Crop for Rifle Stocks

STITZER, Wis.—(U.P.)—American farmers are performing great feats of production for the war effort but in this Grant county community a 66-year-old bachelor farmer is raising and harvesting a crop of trees.

Clarence Kluckhorn is the tree farmer whose finest walnuts were sent to a Dubuque, Ia., gun stock mill. Last year 82 trees were cut and shipped and 250 walnut seedlings were planted in their stead.

Kluckhorn has farmed his trees just as the best agriculturists farm their small grains. He takes great pride in his trees, which now are forming the stocks of Garands and other army rifles in all American theaters of war.

Not until he was certain that his trees would be made into gun stocks was the bachelor farmer willing to sell. All the trees came from the farm which was homesteaded 90 years ago and on which Kluckhorn is the lone resident, the youngest of 13 children.

The farm consists of 349 acres and around it stand huge basswoods and locust trees planted by Clarence's father, August, shortly after the Civil war. Kluckhorn plants three seedlings for every tree cut and already has established a stand of white pine on a slope too steep for cultivation. One small "forest" contains many straight, walnut trees but they are not yet large enough for war use.

Crew of Plane to Which Island Surrendered

Surrender of Lampedusa, an Italian island in the Mediterranean, was made to these three British fliers, who landed their Swordfish plane on the island when it ran out of gasoline. Left to right are Sgt. Leslie Wright, radio operator and gunner; Sgt. Sidney Cohen, pilot, now dubbed "King of Lampedusa," and Sgt. Peter Tait, the navigator. When the plane landed on a Lampedusa airfield during an allied raid, Italian officers asked Cohen to relay word of their willingness to surrender to the allies. U. S. Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, JUNE 17, 1943.

A vacation is defined as "a change"—but from the present outlook there'll be neither vacation nor change.

But, on the other hand, what will happen if some group develops "conscientious scruples" against the "point" rationing system?

Read Franklin K. Lane's interpretation of what the Flag is saying to us: "I am whatever you make me, nothing more. I am your belief in yourself, your dream of what a people may become."

President Approves Subsidy Payments

PAYMENT of government subsidies, as a part of the so-called "roll back" of commodity prices, has been given the blessing of President Roosevelt and will therefore probably proceed as planned, and as is already in limited operation.

While the present program calls for use of no more than an inconsequential couple of billion dollars, the whole idea is one that would naturally make such appeal to New Deal theorists that further expansion to, oh say, ten billions—or fifty billions—would no doubt be regarded as a mere detail of bookkeeping.

Carried to its ultimate, there is no real reason why subsidies, when once started, shouldn't hop right along to the point where the consumer would be required to pay no more than government-provided "points" for commodities—with the actual money passing along from "the government" to producers, processers, wholesalers and retailers.

Then all that would have to be done would be to require consumers to do all their paying in the form of taxes—so as to make up the billions of dollars paid out of public funds in the form of subsidies.

President Roosevelt is quoted as saying that he will go ahead paying subsidies to reduce retail prices "unless somebody can suggest a better method of keeping down the cost of living."

It appears quite unlikely that anybody can suggest what the president will regard as "a better method"—it is not characteristic of Mr. Roosevelt to admit that any other method could be better than his own.

Boys Learn To Govern Selves

AMONG the many worth-while activities of the American Legion is annual sponsorship of the Boys' State, which is being conducted this year on the Ohio Wesleyan campus in Delaware.

Fifteen Mansfield and Richland county boys are in attendance at this exemplification of methods of self-government, in which boys of high school age have opportunity to organize miniature political parties, elect officials and carry on their own processes of government for a 10-day period.

During the years that these assemblies have been made possible under leadership of the Legion, with various individuals and groups co-operating by contributing money required to meet the cost of sending one or more boys, a total of hundreds of boys have been given an insight into the practical workings of representative government—and the part that each citizen is expected to play.

In theory at least, the information gained by the young people who attend Boys' State should be a part of the training of every American boy and girl for the responsibilities of citizenship.

It would be an excellent thing if some adaptation of the Boys' State idea could be developed for use in each city and county—so that there could be a further spread of the advantages of such training of youth.

Something for Everybody

EVERYONE in America reads the daily newspapers," said C. E. Phillips of the Rockford, Ill., Star, to the Newspaper Advertising Executives association.

"The war news, accompanied by action pictures, brings the whole world to the front door of every family. A total of 42,744,000 daily newspapers are sold to families and individuals in the United States every day, and the penny and nickel investment runs into a daily total of $1,300,000. No other advertising medium can compete with the steady public interest and support that is given to newspapers."

It is even more true in the small city than in the great metropolitan centers, that "everyone reads the newspaper." The whole family gets a glance at the late news. Then every individual has his favorite comic and his favorite column and feature.

From the littlest folks, who like the sound and feel of tearing paper, up to Grandpa who has seen three wars and intervals of peace, and knows what the paper "ought to print," the whole family gets a whack at it. Mother gets the latest points, sister the society, and the boys are attracted by the army news and sports.

So it's a great medium for advertisers. And the clever ones are turning out advertisements these days which no one in the family wants to miss.

Postoffice Service Curtailed

POSTOFFICES in some of the country's smaller towns are feeling the effects of war, and if the postmaster and his clerks wear a haggard look these days, there's a reason. Many letter carriers have quit for higher pay in defense plants, and local citizens must go to the postoffice for their mail.

"It's just like the Christmas rush, only it comes every day," says an overworked clerk. "We can't get the mail sorted because we have to wait on the customers, and we can't wait on the customers because we can't get the mail sorted."

War's demands on the American people are not only those of blood and money. There is also a constant drain on time and patience, to which everybody must become accustomed.

One-Armed Ball Player Makes Good

ESSENTIAL equipment for playing baseball would seem to be two arms and two legs, to say nothing of a head.

Not absolutely so, however, for the Memphis team in the Southern Association has a one-armed outfielder—Pete Gray. He has been doing all right, too, in his professional career. Last year, playing in the Canadian-American league, he hit for an average of .381, leading the league.

It was a Toledo coed who advised in the college weekly: "If you find yourself in hot water, be nonchalant. Take a bath."

Who can remember back when "a baker's dozen" was 13?

WASHDAY ON THE MEDITERRANEAN FRONT

More About Ocean 'Seadromes'

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Since one of the major airlines applied for permission to establish a post-war "seadrome" route from here to Great Britain, some people have asked if the "seadromes" are a military secret; if they aren't just another mechanical magazine dream; whether establishment of them would mean that the United States intends to take over the Atlantic as its private flying field; and what benefit they would be in view of the fact that present transatlantic hops of bombers and the clippers seem to be so successful.

Pennsylvania Central Airlines has answered most of those questions and since they are making the application, they should know.

IN THE first place, the "seadromes" are no military secret. The vast amount of steel which would be used in these "floating islands," spaced at 800 mile intervals across the ocean, would not make them practicable for use in this war. These steel islands, weighing 64,000 tons, would have flat-tops and mooring bases 70 feet above the surface, with bouyancy tanks and "foundation" extending 160 feet below the surface, so that even in storms they would be unaffected by wind and waves.

The "seadrome" is no dream. Edward R. Armstrong of Philadelphia is the inventor and he has been working on it for ten years. According to C. Bedell Monro, Pennsylvania Central president, the Sun Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company will build the dromes and associated with them will be such companies as United States Steel, Wirth Steel Company, the Belmont Iron Works and the John A. Roebling Co.

AS FOR benefits over the present methods of ocean travel, it is said that the short hops will increase the present payload of transoceanic planes several hundred per cent, without necessitating any changes in design. This would be, of course, because of the great reduction in the amount of fuel which would have to be carried on take-offs.

Also the seadromes, located outside the ice and fog belts of the far north and outside the tropical storm areas to the south, would provide the most direct all-weather route to England, Monro says.

There is also the factor that plane designs, in the first years after this war, won't change at anything like the rate they have during this war, and that it will be "bomber-type" and clipper-type ships of today that will be flying the oceans. These can't fly with the big payloads in passengers or freight that would make them an economic means of transportation, unless intermediate bases are there to land and refuel on.

The bases also will have hotel facilities which should make the post-war hop to Europe as safe and comfortable as a train hop from Washington to St. Louis, Chicago or Boston.

One Man's Opinion

WELL, the tax payment we made Tuesday was the last of its kind and a good thing too.

* * *

Now comes pay-as-you-go with its invitation to scream 52 times a year about high taxes.

* * *

Now let Aubrey Williams get up and tell how he needs 40 million dollars this year for the National Youth Administration to train old men and women on account of all the national youths are gone to war or are headed that way.

* * *

With your pay envelope clipped week in and week out, year in and year out until you quit or die, you are going to be so tax conscious that the Aubrey Williams' of the country will be diving into fox holes.

* * *

When pay-as-you-go comes in, the wonderful era of "spend and spend and spend; tax and tax and tax" goes out.

* * *

Come July 1 and the first diluted pay envelope and you won't find a people in the world more in favor of strict economy. And angry and noisy about it too.

* * *

That's when we really open our eyes and keep 'em open.

LIFE'S LIKE THAT

"He comes every day at the same time . . . just after I've eaten and wanna take a nap!"

Listen World! By ELSIE ROBINSON

Stately Mansions

HOW OFTEN have you wondered, lately, if it's all worth while? Those parents of the lads who lie in Iceland, Tunis, Attu, Honolulu or Algiers . . . these splendid boys around whom all our dreams and pride and love were centered . . . why did they have to go, while worthless husks were saved?

"I'm not religious," you mutter to yourself, "but I'd sure like to know why life's like this. Such decent kids! Why should our prayers and dreams, struggles and sacrifice be all in vain? It isn't fair!"

How often have you said these words—then turned away—your faith grown dim? Then thought, perhaps, of lines you learned when just a tyke—and feel them lead you, somehow, back to Him. There's one—remember?—"To a Chambered Nautilus." You liked it for it brought you close to beaches and shells, to all of nature's fairy tales. Remember?

"Build me more stately mansions,
O my soul,
As the swift seasons roll!
Leave thy low vaulted past!
Let each new temple, nobler than the last,
Shut thee from heaven with a dome more vast;
Till thou at length are free,
Leaving thine outgrown shell on life's unresting sea."

Just seven lines, but never have mere lines come closer to our human pain and need. This cruel war! If we could only have a hint of what it means! If we could only see a section of the path we tread—we would have courage for the day ahead!

We can be brave. We can hold up our head against the loss, the loneliness and dread. We can fight on . . . take all things in our stride . . . if we could only guess what lies inside . . . what growth . . . what noble destiny? But we are blind—

We cannot see that each test brings new strength and ecstasy. We labor in the darkness and we cannot know that we are wiser for each slow and anguished reaching toward a greater life.

"The Chambered Nautilus"... a seashell set to music in the murm'ring waves—that's how it began. At first a nubble of unconscious growth, without a pattern or a plan. Then slowly it began to spread within itself and whorl after whorl expanding in itself until the central section was all filled with tiny cells of iridescent pearl, each wider than the one which went before. Like lovely thoughts which, film on film, unfold until they blend in one eternal unity.

"The Chambered Nautilus!" How like we are to that fragile, tumbled shell! We, too, grew in the secret darkness of ourselves—and knew not how we grew. Yet, with each risk, each storm, we found new strength and beauty and new liberty. We could not see the widening horizon in ourselves . . . the pearl lined cells.

But One who watched the far tides rise and fall, He knew that we were stronger for it all . . . kinder and wiser for each test we shared.

"BUILD THEE MORE STATELY MANSIONS"—so the poet prayed. And found his answer in each battering wave . . . each flailing wind.

"BUILD THEE MORE STATELY MANSIONS, O MY SOUL!" Think of those lines as the heartsick hours roll. From out the rubble and the waste of stormy past, build greater, wider knowledge which will last . . . UNTIL THE JOB IS DONE!

(Copyright, 1943.)

Dave Boone Says:

THE SUPREME COURT didn't come out with any new ruling about compulsory salutes for Old Glory yesterday or today so I guess it's still sticking to its Monday decision.

* * *

If it has any new ones about the flag I hope it doesn't hand them down on national holidays dedicated to the Stars and Stripes. Unless they're favorable.

* * *

The court is probably right this time. But it is just one more thing to befuddle the befuddled public when a court reverses itself so completely.

* * *

These are times when values, standards, trends and opinions change so fast and in so many places that it would be a great comfort to feel that the highest court in the land ain't confused or uncertain.

* * *

Personally, I wish we were as much concerned about a lot of things harmful and degrading to all the school kids as we are concerned over the handful that won't salute.

President Aroused Over Efforts To Knife Securities Legislation

WASHINGTON—Despite the fact that the president has little time for most domestic problems these days, he got aroused last week over undercover knifing aimed at one of his first New Deal reforms—protection of investors through the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Ever since July 1940, Wall Street and banking groups have been trying to amend Securities and Exchange legislation—some of the amendments making sense, others cutting the heart out of the SEC. Hearings regarding these proposed amendments have been held before the house interstate and foreign commerce committee, but for about a year now they have lain dormant.

Out of the clear blue, however, the proposed SEC amendments have been revived. Apparently the big Wall Street boys figure now is the time to strike while Roosevelt is busy with the war, and congress is lackadaisical about New Deal reforms.

To this end, Chairman Clarence Lea of California has announced that hearings, in effect, to stymie the agency which Roosevelt created in 1933 to keep the money changers out of the Temple, would begin immediately.

Further he has revealed the amazing fact that the consultant for the house committee is none other than Paul Frum, partner in Newton D. Baker's Cleveland law firm, and representative of the National Association of security dealers.

In other words, the National Association of Security dealers, an organization active in the drive to gut the SEC, has had its man sitting on the staff of a congressional committee supposed to be impartial and supposed to decide things for the best interests of the country, not for the Wall Street traders.

Furthermore, Frum is sitting with the house interstate commerce committee at closed-door sessions, with no member of the press or public present.

This caused SEC Chairman Ganson Purcell to hit the ceiling. Not even an SEC representative was to be there to check on Frum's advice. He protested so vigorously that Congressman Lea finally yielded to the point of permitting an SEC representative inside the hearings.

Prejudiced Mr. Lea seems to think that Frum is doing the committee a great service.

"He gives us his time free of charge," explained Lea.

"Yes, but the security dealers pay him plenty," countered Purcell.

Note: Chairman Purcell pays tribute to the integrity and ability of Mr. Frum. It is generally recognized in Washington that the mainspring of the drive against the SEC is the Investment Bankers association, and the National Association of Security dealers has been representing the middleman. The SEC is much more sympathetic with the middleman and feels that some of their proposals are meritorious.

Canadian "Absentees."

CANADA also has an "absentee" problem, but some government officials in Ottawa are becoming a bit cynical about it.

An epidemic of illness in Canadian government offices reached such proportions that reporters were prompted to ask C. D. Howe, minister of munitions and supplies, if he thought government employes were being "overworked."

"I can speak only for my own department, Howe replied, but no doubt the same thing obtains in other divisions. I have three kinds of people working for me—one, those with gastric ulcers; two, those with a cardiac condition, and, three, those with a sense of humor."

FDR Aids His Foe.

REPRESENTATIVE Bill Lemke of North Dakota, one-time candidate for president, has been a foe of Franklin Roosevelt from way back. He staged almost a religious crusade against him on Father Coughlin's "Union party" ticket in 1936. And he has opposed him on scores of issues.

But when Lemke called on the president recently for a 15-minute conference, the two erstwhile presidential foes chatted for 45 minutes.

"Why, how are you, Bill?" the president exclaimed as the bald, freckled-faced Dakotan walked in. "I often think about you and that '36 campaign. You ran on a shoestring, but you polled a lot of votes."

Lemke replied with a smile that he didn't want to take up the president's time talking about old times.

"I have some very pressing problems on my mind," he said, explaining that three important irrigation projects in his district were being held up because of a WPB stop-order on steel and concrete.

"It will be disastrous if we have another drought in my country," Lemke said. "These irrigation projects are highly essential to the war food program."

Roosevelt agreed that the irrigation projects were needed, but asked Lemke if there was enough available labor to complete them. Lemke replied that there was plenty of seasonal farm labor, and soldiers furloughed for farm work, to do the job.

"You leave this to me, Bill," declared the president. "I'll take care of it."

A few days later Lemke got a phone call from the secretary of General "Pa" Watson, White House military aide, notifying him that a report on North Dakota "irrigation projects" would soon be ready.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Sunday, June 17, 1928.

It was announced that almost half of the country's money was in gold coins.

One hundredth anniversary of founding of Newville was celebrated with home coming at which talks were given by former residents of the village.

Daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. George E. Russell, Springmill street.

Dr. J. Knox Montgomery, president of Muskingum college, preached at union service at Coliseum.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Martin, Park avenue west, returned from a trip around the world.

Mrs. Thomas Hanna, 78, died at her home, 199 East Third street.

Clem Simmons and B. W. Finney, of the Caldwell & Bloor store, reported a big catch while fishing in the Walhonding near Spellacy.

ERNIE PYLE Roving Reporter

Bargaining Is Fine Art In African Markets, Haggling Is Method of Arriving at Price.

SOMEWHERE IN AFRICA—(By Wireless)—A good friend of mine on this southern trip was Lieut. Leslie Boyd, of Ontario, Cal. His work causes him to travel a lot, and he knows remote parts of central Africa and the Middle East as well as he knows California.

We went exploring and gadget-shopping together in several parts of the world. One day in a native market on the coast of Africa Lieutenant Boyd and I were strolling around looking for things to buy, and a beautifully embroidered fez caught my eye. So I asked two Negro shopkeepers who were sitting on the ground inside their stalls, "How much?"

One of the women was very old, the other quite young. They named a price, and Les and I automatically threw up our hands and pooh-poohed the whole idea. Of course that's the normal procedure—they ask about double what they expect to get, and if you paid them what they asked they'd be disgusted.

The point is to keep on haggling, you coming up and they coming down, until finally you arrive at about the price you both knew it should be all the time.

But in this case we just said the price was too much and walked on. There was no other fez market as nice as that one, and so a half hour later we wound up again before this stall, ready to start bargaining. But by now the two shop owners weren't interested. They just didn't want to play.

Apparently I had made a breach of local business etiquet by walking away when I really was interested. And they never did sell it to me, either.

They were perfectly friendly and nice but they just wouldn't talk price any more. They knew I would now pay more than I had originally intended, yet they finally let me go to another stall and buy a fez from another fellow.

That's the way I think business should be conducted—transactions by whim only. If you suddenly don't feel like making some money, then just skip it. If I could only be like that I could just write a column or two a month.

THESE African Negroes have a sense of fun about them all the time. Another incident happened the same day. Lieutenant Boyd and I stopped to talk to the woman from whom I had bought the material for my pajamas, and we were welcomed like long-lost members of the family.

Boyd had his camera, and he wanted to get a shot of us in the market, so he buttonholed a Negro passerby and showed him how to work the camera. Then he got the Negro woman to stand between us, with her little naked baby hanging to her dress. Usually if you ask a native to pose for you he will if you "dash" him a shilling or so, but since I was by now an old and valued customer the woman wouldn't think of asking me for a tip.

When it was finished we shook hands all around and walked on. As we passed a stall a few feet away, a big fat woman, apparently madder than a hornet, began screaming at us.

"Don't you dare take my picture without dashing me!" she yelled.

Lieutenant Boyd said, "we don't want to take your picture."

That seemed to make her all the madder. She hollered, "I won't let you take my picture without dashing me.'

"You're being a bit previous," Boyd said. "We didn't ask to take your picture. We don't want to take your picture. In fact we wouldn't take your picture if you asked us to."

The woman yelled back, "You're a bad man," and we walked on around the market.

ABOUT ten minutes later, clear on the other side of the big market, I was jostled in the crowd and here was this same woman, apparently still mad.

She said to me, "He cussed me."

I said, "Why he didn't cuss you at all. What's the matter with you?"

Lieutenant Boyd stepped over and started to get mad himself, but I could see a sparkle in the woman's eyes behind the ferocious look on her face, so I said quietly:

"Naw, he didn't cuss you. He likes you. He'd have used bad words to cuss you, and he didn't use any bad words, now did he?"

The woman looked down at the ground and still said, "He cussed me."

You can't exactly convey in words how you can sense the devil in somebody, but somehow I could tell that this big scowling black woman couldn't hold on much longer. So all of a sudden I started laughing. Whereupon she began laughing fit to kill, and slapping her leg, and as we walked off grinning she called out, "Okay, goodby," in the friendliest tone you ever heard.

She had made the whole thing up and had walked clear around the market just to put on the final act of her little comedy. You can't help liking people who get that much fun out of life.

A Farmer's Diary By CALVIN A. BYERS

What's a Handicap!

IT WAS actually true! The farmer I saw operating a tractor that pulled three 14-inch plows had his left arm off below the elbow, and his right leg severed above the knee. The plows jumped out, when they hit a rock. Immediately he raised them, turned about the unplowed part of the field tripped the gang in front of the stone and went on. Satisfaction was in his weather-beaten face.

This man, with the aid of his wife and 15-year-old son, farmed profitably 100 acres of land. He exchanged hands at threshing time with the neighbors, helped buzz wood in winter, and wherever he went was the life of the crowd.

Yesterday, across Honey Creek, my neighbor and his father, whose home is in the village, neatly plowed a rolling field with two teams. The father has both arms off, and uses steel hooks to grasp and hold objects. He drove the leading team and very skilfully handled the walking plow, on stony ground. He was always a farmer, loves the soil. The loss of two hands cannot keep him away. Last summer I saw him plow corn with a two-row cultivator, set the hay fork, throw hay down from the mow for the stock. He serves himself at table, and smokes cigarets adeptly, unaided.

SOME years ago, I sat at dinner in a small hotel at Pine Grove Mills, Pa. The aged man who served me said that the evening before, Helen Kellar and two other women had eaten at the table I was using. Why, she was blind, deaf and could not speak, yet she had conversed by touching with her fingers her companion's lips. The inspiration and wonder of her had excited the village, and lingered in the manner of the man who told me about it.

It was the blind poet, Milton, who looked beyond through the gates of paradise. Beethoven felt the sounds of the earth he loved slip from his hearing, and interpreted vaster symphonies to the world. It was Byron, with a shrunken foot, who "climbed toward the Alpine skies."

Is there anyone, in possession of his normal senses, who would plead a handicap, remembering these?

MAYOR WORKS IN PLANE PLANT IN ADDITION TO RUNNING CITY

(By United Press)

FORT WORTH, Tex.—Alvin L. Creswell, the mayor of Alvarado, Tex., has gone to war.

So has one of his councilmen, 66-year-old E. L. Bearnneau.

For the duration they are dividing their time between running their town and helping build giant B-24 Liberator bombers and C-87 transports at Consolidated Aircraft's plant in Fort Worth.

When interviewed at his job in the Finished Parts' department, His Honor explained it in this manner:

"Long as everything in the town was running smoothly, I thought I should do something to help my country as well as my city.

"So, I sold the grocery store I've operated since 1932 and came to Consolidated two months ago to help build these big planes which I feel are important factors in our winning this war.

"It's the first time I've ever worked for anyone. When I got my first check it was the first pay I've ever drawn from any business save my own—excluding the mayor's job, of course.

"I like it here—feel like I am really doing some good," Creswell explained.

"So, everytime I go home I take along an application blank and get another worker. I have gotten 10 fromy my home town, including one of my council members.

"Bernneau is like myself—he never worked for anyone except himself either. He's been a blacksmith down my way for more than 45 years. He's 66 years old today, but just as strong and sturdy as men half his age. He's working in the Sheet Metal department. He still keeps his blacksmith shop running in Alvarado, too."

Creswell was elected mayor in April. Since he works on the second shift and doesn't have to report to work at the plant until afternoon, he still has time to attend to his business as mayor in the mornings and hold his regular bi-monthly meetings there with the city council.

Nudging Nature In Victory Garden With Liquid Manure.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Ass'n

THERE Is such a thing as nudging nature to obtain quick growth in the Victory garden and liquid manure can be used for that purpose When applied to tomato, eggplant, peppers and other plants in the Victory garden liquid manure stimulates growth and frequently hastens crop maturity. Growing plants can only absorb food which is in solution and liquid manure thus supplies a short cut in feeding

Liquid manure can easily be made by soaking a bagful of manure in a barrel of water (or other large container), as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. Stir the mixture once a day for a week before using the liquid When it is to be used dilute the liquid manure with water until it is a pale straw color to prevent the danger of burning the plants

When manure is not available the Victory fertilizer can be used to make liquid manure Dissolve one ounce of fertilizer in two to four gallons of water Do not use this mixture more often than once every two weeks Be careful to keep the solution off the foliage.

Do not use liquid manure when the soil is dry. Wait until after a good rainfall or soak the soil well by allowing the hose to run water on it for a prolonged period before applying liquid manure If it is fed to the plants when the soil is dry it is absorbed by the plants so quickly that there is danger of burning the roots Watering lightly after the feeding is also a good practice.

Should Use Eyes When Speaking

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

Have you ever observed a boy or girl from 12 to 18 stand and speak before his class at school or in any other group? Rarely does he look comfortable. Nor does he feel comfortable, as a rule.

In any forum audience, one or more students will tell how hard it is to face an audience squarely and use the eyes comfortably when speaking before a group, or strange person individually. Many a youngster will say that when he appears on the platform or even stands before his class, to speak, he doesn't see any one. "Everything before me is black," is a frequent statement. Some say they are terrified when eyes are turned toward them or when their eyes fall upon the eyes of a particular person in the audience. Some others say they deliberately look above or beyond their audience.

Always I remind them that if they have something to say they surely want their audience to listen to it, that when one in an audience listens, he looks at the speaker and likes to see his eyes.

This difficulty of looking square at a person or group of persons and the emotional disturbances causing the difficulty, ought to be the concern of every parent and teacher, since they mean so much to personality growth.

Let me warn you, however, not to suppose you can help a child or youth be at ease when he converses or speaks in public by just telling him to do so. While it is well for him to consider it important to use his eyes as he speaks or listens, he learns to do so well only when he feels comfortable in doing so.

At home or school ours is the opportunity to help him feel comfortable as he speaks, by treating him with due respect as a person, listening to him attentively and sympathetically, never making fun of what he says or how he says it, and seeing that others don't in our presence.

Treated so, the child of three or four uses his eyes very well in speaking to others in his home. Let us take a lesson from this tot and set a good example to other children and youths. Let us make a practice at home to use our eyes when we talk or listen to people.

Should you wish to read further on this matter you might do so from my book, Building Personality In Children, to be found, no doubt, in your public library

Q. My 10-year-old girl is always biting her lead pencil at school, twirling at her hair or handkerchief and can hardly sit still a minute anywhere.

A. Treat her as a very "nervous" child. Hold her rigidly to ample regular sleep routines. Encourage her to play out of doors with others her age but not too long or strenuously at a stretch. Let her go to the movies but rarely. If she shows marked improvement. Cultivate quiet voices in the family and try to have good times together. It would be well to require her to lie down for at least half an hour before the evening meal. Consider the possibilities of jealousy as a factor. Also have your doctor check on her physical state. I have a special bulletin on "Nervous Habits In Children," to be had without cost to you by writing me in care of this paper enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Q. My boy 12 years old has failed in science and history but in most never studies at home. How should I punish him for his poor grades?

A. Don't punish him for his poor grades. See that he goes at his lessons each evening before school at a regular time and place for at least a half hour. Conferring with his teacher, try to find out what his trouble is. He probably is a poor reader. I should be glad to send you "Home Helps for Poor Readers, Part II," if you will write me in care of this paper enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Q. Should the tot be held strictly to the afternoon nap till he enters school?

A. Yes; by all means. My special bulletin on sleep and the young child may be had without cost to you by writing me in care of this paper enclosing a three-cent stamp on a self-addressed envelope.

Q. About how many words are in the vocabulary of a child entering school at the age of six?

A. About 13,000 words. You may have a chart giving the size of vocabulary of the average child at various age levels by writing me in care of this paper enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Something in my father's tone quickened my interest.

"You mean she will try to stage something here at that hour in the morning?" I queried.

"I don't know," my father said, and his voice was worried. "You see, I had planned on trapping her tomorrow morning, and then if I had evidence enough against her on what she has planned to do to you—and believe me, my dear Katharine, she has planned plenty—I would not have had to subject Hal Meredith to another blackmailing interview from her.

"But," he continued, "this scheduled performance tomorrow morning is made to order for me. I will have officers hidden who will see her take the satchel from Olina. The bills it will contain are all marked. And wherever she goes with it, she will be trailed. What I particularly want to find out is whether she takes it to Steve Redfield, or whether she pockets the money herself. I think she will take it to Redfield, and one of my theories will be proved. Then, as I want to prove her something more than a tool, I shall have to stage the meeting with Meredith where she undoubtedly will repeat her blackmail threats, with unseen listeners to make notes, and literally deliver her into my hands.

Can't Protetct Madge.

"But," he finished, "as I will not be ready tonight for the final showdown with her, I do not see how I am going protect you, Margaret, from unpleasantness. We can secrete Katharine in the adjoining apartment—"

"I am not going to hide behind Madge's skirts!" Katharine interrupted hotly.

"My dear girl!" My father's tone was one with which one chides an unreasonable child. "It is not for you to say what you will or will not do. I have undertaken to protect Jack, and to bring this Hayes woman to justice. You must permit me to do it in my own way."

Katharine's face flushed. "I didn't mean—" she faltered.

"Of course you didn't," my father said, his tone as soothing as if just had been censorious, "and, of course your sentiments do you credit. It is simply that I cannot afford to indulge in sentiment when issues of life and death are at stake, or to permit anyone associated with me to do so. But in the meantime, we have a very real problem. Have you any suggestions, Margaret, as to how best to deal with Ruth Hayes?"

"I know one person who could deal with her most effectively," I said.

"Who is that?" he asked quickly.

"Dicky," I replied calmly.

My father struck his hands together in an exasperated little gesture

"Bless my soul!" he exclaimed. "Of course! I never thought of him. Will you call him, or shall I?"

"May I?" I asked, smiling at him.

"O course," he answered. "Ask him how soon he can come over, and tell him I want him to stay the night. He will know what to do so that Ronald can carry on with Harry."

Telephones Her Husband.

I went immediately to the telephone, with the lift the prospect of talking to my husband always gives me. He is so full of life and optimism himself that he infects everybody else with his good cheer. And I knew how he would delight in taking on an antagonist like Ruth Hayes

"Dicky?" I queried banally enough as his "Hello!" came over the wire.

"No, this is not Dicky, my good woman," he said in lofty accents. "This is the secretary of His Lordship of Tut Tut. Will you state your errand, please?"

"Don't shoot, I'll come down!" I exclaimed laughing. "But this is important. There's something special on, and father wants you to come over as soon as possible. prepared to spend the night"

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, June 18.

The lunar aspects of this day must be considered as generally adverse. There is much danger of being carried to disagreeable extremes or irregularities of conduct, through treachery Shun all intrigues and erratic friction or discord with elders, superiors or those in authority, make plans on upright and straightforward lines, and all may turn out satisfactorily.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of curious or peculiar events. The forces and mentality may be chaotic and confused, prompting unwise behavior. This may be largely owing to antagonisms or breaks with those in powerful positions. With regard for the health, proper management of hunches or urges for a sane and balanced course of action, all may ultimately be gratifying and inaugurate some unexpected benefits.

A child born on this day may have exceptional talents, and be studious and profound, but certain erratic or confused tendencies may turn its benefactors against it. Supervision of its mental and nervous tension is recommended.

Mushrooms Can Be Used For Flavor

By BETSY NEWMAN

While mushrooms do not contain protein and other needed substances to substitute for meat in a menu, they may be used with other foods that do contain these substances to make a dish that fulfills all nutritional needs. Use them with an omelette, for instance.

Today's Menu.

French Omelette with Mushroom Sauce
Boiled Rice or Potatoes
Sliced Tomato Salad
Green Peas
Lemon or Orange Pie
Tea or Coffee. Iced or Hot

French Omelette.

2 Tbsps, butter
3 eggs.
¼ tsp salt
Dash pepper
3 Tbsps. top milk or cream

Heat butter in frying pan slowly. Break eggs into bowl, add salt, pepper and cream and beat together until well mixed and eggs are light. When butter is hot turn in eggs, reduce heat and let stand a minute undisturbed, then, tipping pan slightly, holding it by the handle, slip spatula underneath eggs, bringing them up toward center, letting the uncooked part flow to the bottom Continue until eggs are set. Turn up heat a minute to brown, fold eggs over and serve immediately with mushroom sauce, on heated platter. If you can get a can of cream of mushroom soup you can heat it, see that it is seasoned nicely, and use it as sauce, pouring it over the omelette. Or you can cook the chopped mushrooms in a little butter or margarine for 5 minutes, then make a light cream sauce, add mushrooms to it and pour over omelette Serves 2 One-half pound mushrooms will serve 2 or 3 persons

Lemon or Orange Meringue Pie.

1 baked 8-inch pie shell
½ c sugar
¼ tps salt
3 tbsps. cornstarch
2 tbsps cake flour.
1½ c. boiling water
2 eggs
2 tbsps. butter or margarine
½ c. lemon juice or
¼ c. orange juice and
2 tbsps lemon juice
1 tsp. grated lemon or orange rind

Put ¼ cup sugar into top part of double boiler, add salt, flour and cornstarch as they are measured, stir to mix well. Add boiling water to mixture slowly, stirring carefully and slowly to prevent lumps, and cook 1 minute over direct heat, stirring constantly until it thickens, then place over boiling water, and continue cooking until mixture is thickened and clear and starch is thoroughly cooked, about 15 minutes. Separate eggs, beat yolks, add remaining sugar to them, beating it in; add portion of hot mixture, stirring it carefully into yolks, and return all to double boiler; add butter and continue cooking and stirring 3 minutes longer. While mixture cooks, prepare lemon and orange juice and rind. Remove custard from stove, stir in fruit juice and rind and cool mixture until it feels just warm: turn into baked shell and spread evenly. Heat oven to 350 degrees F. Make meringue, using the 2 egg whites, beaten to stiff froth and adding ½ teaspoon salt and ¼ cup sugar gradually. Spread over lemon mixture, covering the crust to the edges Bake until a delicate brown.

Following 1-Spade from South on this deal, what is North's best plan for the bidding of his hand?

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

LIKE SEEING HIS HAND

It is amazing how clearly your partner can picture his hand to you on certain occasions. His bidding sometimes enables you to know almost exactly what he holds, and therefore what he hopes to find in your hand. Remembering those occasions, and the way he helped you steer the side into the correct contract, should help you to endeavor to aid him in the same way when it is your turn to paint a picture for him. If you give him credit for intelligent judgment, that method is better than jumping to some conclusion which is a mere gamble on your part.

Pretty terrific bidding, that, especially by the West players at both tables. One of them, however, was badly sunk by his partner's hop into 3-No Trumps, which he, of course, passed. That was set all over the place, the defenders taking eight tricks and putting it down four. Just figure out any more or less normal defense you can think of, and the best possible efforts by East, and you will reach about that result.

Where East on his third turn bid 3-Spades instead of 3-No trumps, he made several things extremely clear to his partner. First, he indicated that he had five spades and four diamonds. Second he showed a fear of No Trumps unless West had some kind of probable or at least possible club stopper, East would have left it, despite the bad fit with his partner's suit, having only a singleton.

West at Table 2 considered that his partner's 3-Spades virtually forced him to show his preference between the two suits, which was emphatically for the diamonds. And East made the 4-Diamonds. South led the club 2 to the Q and A. East put forth the heart 5, which South won with the A. He returned the club 3 to the K, North switched to a diamond, but East won, and then did a lot of cross ruffing, losing only one more trick, to the diamond Q

Government Trains Dogs For Army

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Due to the fact that my grandparents want to start a Victory Garden in our back-yard, I am unable to keep my dog, as she runs around in the space where they want to start planting.

I've heard that dogs are needed for defense and I would like to give my dog to the army.. How can I get her into the dog Army? My dog is about the size of a cocker spaniel. MARY.

Dogs—mainly given to the government—are being trained for messenger and guard service, airplane spotting and attacking parachute invaders, at the Remount Depot, Quartermaster Corps, Front Royal, Virginia. However, I fear your dog is too small to be accepted at the Remount Station. You might write them a letter and advise them of your dog's weight.

A private corporation, Dogs for Defense, Inc., has been organized to procure these dogs on a voluntary basis for the Quartermaster Corps, Services of Supply. The headquarters office of this corporation is at 22 East 60th Street, New York City, with field representatives all over the country. Consult your telephone directory for the one nearest to you.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My son has been supporting his wife and me, and he has now been drafted into the army. What allowance will we get from the government and him for each of us? (Mrs) F. A. E.

When your son is inducted into the army he is given an opportunity to file an application for the family allowance. The wife's allowance is compulsory. If your son produces a statement that he is responsible for a substantial portion of your support, you also are entitled to an allowance, amounting to $20 a month. The total to you and your son's wife will be $70. Of this amount your son will pay $27, and the balance will be contributed by the government.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Are members of the Seventh Day Adventist religion eligible for combat duty in the Armed Forces? Are they deferred, placed in non-combatant units, or are they required to lend their services to the war effort in any other manner? J. M B.

Seventh Day Adventists are regarded as conscientious objectors and are exempt from combat duty. They are employed in defense plants, shipyards, and fill such jobs as painting, etc. on government building projects. They also give their services to hospitals, and assist in Red Cross work.

Mme. Qui Vive Discusses Career Girl

By MME QUI VIVE

Never before, in the history of Uncle Sam's domain, has so many of his daughters fared forth to bring home the bacon and eggs. Even grandma planks on her cutie hat, runs out of the house to catch the 8:04, spends the day in useful employment. Many a wife takes off overalls at closing time, dons feminine attire, chases to the grocery, lugs home food for herself and her man, does all manner of odd chores in the evening —a kitchen cabinet to put in order, silver to polish, stockings to be washed.

How many women are engaged in mechanical and industrial pursuits, we can't tell you. Probably nobody can, as hundreds are joining up every day. We do know that some of this absenteeism we hear about is due to the fact that holding down a job, running a home, and finding some sort of social life is just about all a woman can manage. She can't do it unless she is in tiptop health. Time is ever nipping at her heels. Her eye is on the clock. Twenty-four hours to the day are not enough for what she has to do.

In the realm of business there is no place for the complainer or the employee who drags her heels. Substandard health means inefficiency, poor judgment, a gloomy mental state.

Life must be organized. There must be a schedule arranged so that one will get sufficient sleep, have meals at regular hours. There is such a thing as working restfully, but that can't be if a girl leaps out of bed half awake, dresses hurriedly, takes a sip of coffee and rushes off to work That is the best possible way of making a bad beginning. She should set the alarm clock at an hour that will permit her to get fully awake before she arises, to stretch and yawn, have a few minutes for planning the day's activities. There should be a substantial breakfast, not a snack. Many hours elapse between last night's dinner and the day's breakfast, and you can't run your engines without fuel

Luncheon should be light but nutritious. If a girl is fagged to pieces after the day's work, she'll have no appetite for dinner. Poor eating habits cause digestive disturbances, emotional upsets, irritability.

Don't forget that it is necessary to have a certain amount of stored up vitality to resist infections.

Get to bed at a decent hour; have a warm—not hot—bath before piling in Fifteen minutes of soaking will relax tense muscles, quiet howling nerves.

Stick to an adequate diet; eat slowly.

If possible, find time for outdoor life. Reading is also a delightful recreation.

Action In the North Atlantic + + +

By Guy Gilpatric

CHAPTER I

In the darkness of the wheelhouse, Captain Elder stirred in his deck chair and rose stiffly to his feet. Stretching, he stood for a moment behind the man at the wheel, glanced over the fellow's shoulder into the pale glow of the compass, and then stepped through the open door onto the bridge. Along the starboard horizon was a faint tinge of pink, as the first light of the sun seeped over the curve of the world. All else was night — the soft warm night of early summer.

Out in the bridge wings, Elder could see the vague, motionless solhouettes of the lookouts, while the watch officer, pausing for a moment in his monotonous pacing to and fro, had rested his elbows on the dodger, cushioned his chin on his forearms, and stood peering into the gloom ahead. The only sounds were the swish of the wind through the stays, the seethe and slap of the water as the tanker plowed the gentle swell, and the ceaseless rumbling undertone of her engines, like an organ played softly in a great cathedral.

Captain Elder shoved his hands into his jacket pockets and set about walking the stiffness out of his legs. At the same time, instinctively and professionally, he fell to sizing up the possibilities of the coming day. The eastern sky, he saw, was rapidly growing brighter and, save for a few streaks of orange cloud, it was clear. What sort of weather lay to westward, it was still too dark to say. But presently, he slowed his pace, tilted back his head and sniffed the air. He came to a halt at the watch officer's side. "Fog around," he grunted. "Fm-f-f! Get it, Mister?"

"Yes, sir. We've been running through the patches of it for the past half-hour."

"Well, the main bank of it's somewhere off there to port. At this time of year, the . . ."

"Torpedo!" The hoarse scream came from the port bridge lookout. "Torpedo! On the port quarter! There! See it? There!"

With a bound Captain Elder was beside the man. He followed the direction of his tensely pointing finger. Perhaps a hundred yards away he saw the white streak. It was coming fast!

"Torpedo!" Simultaneously, the lookouts aloft, fore and aft spotted the streak and took up the cry. The shouted syllables overlapped one another, the combined effect sounding like the reverberation of echoes in a canyon.

"Full left rudder!" Elder bawled over his shoulder, his hands clenched upon the bridge rail. "Hard down, quartermaster! Jam 'er! Jam 'er, man! Oh, God! If we can only swing the stern around . . ."

There was a blinding flash, a sickening shock, a clap of thunder. He heard shouts and the drumming of feet upon the decks. From somewhere deep within the vitals of the ship came an obscene gurgling, retching sound, as the thick oil gushed out and the water poured in. The sound was that of a sick giant vomiting . . .

"God, hear that? They've blown the living guts out of her! Abandon ship!" Elder shouted. "Sound the whistle, quartermaster!—All right, men, into the boats! Take it easy, everybody!"

But already the ship felt loggy. The way was off her and she was listing so rapidly that the two starboard lifeboats lay unlaunchable and useless upon the steepening slope of her side. The after-port boat had been blown to matchwood; the remaining one was lowered and lay resting on the water. Seen in the half light, the rope falls which still connected her with the davits looked like clusters of grapes as men slid down them. Some dropped into the water.

"Unhook, Mr. Rossi! Get out from under, before the ship rolls over on you!" Elder shouted from the bridge.

"We're waiting for you, sir."

"Get the hell away. I tell you! I'm going around to see if everybody's off."

* * *

He clawed down the ladder, which lay at a crazy angle, slipping, crawling along the slanting deck, he made his way aft toward the engine room. Before he had progressed halfway, he heard the deafening crunch and shriek of rending metal — felt an earthquake shock, then another and another. The bulkheads were going! Majestically, the ship reared up as does a horse trying to unseat its rider. Elder wrapped his arms and legs around a stanchion and hung on. Higher, higher, rose the bow, until the great ship towered vertically, jutting from the sea like an accusing monument to man's inhumanity to man. Straight below him—far below him—was the water—a seething, oily cesspool which belched foul geysers as heavy gear and deck machinery tore loose and plunged down into it. Off to the right he could see the crowded lifeboat, the upturned, agonized faces. He saw Mr. Rossi waving to him. He disengaged one hand from the stanchion and returned the wave. Then he pulled the inflation ring on the front of his pneumatic life jacket and closed his eyes . . .

She went down with a roar like the end of the world.

"God!" In the lifeboat, thirty-seven men spoke one word with one voice. Then, "Lay onto those oars!" shouted Mr. Rossi, the mate. "We've got to get him as soon as he comes up!"

"—If," muttered Larson, the carpenter, nevertheless pulling for all he was worth.

"Everybody not at the oars keep their eyes peeled!"

"Aye, aye, sir."

"There! Is that him?"

"Yes!—No—It's only a can or something . . ."

Mr. Rossi stood up in the sternsheets with the tiller between his legs.

"Any sign of him from there, sir?"

"Unh! There's so much junk floating around, it'll be hard to tell which is him. Just keep rowing . . . Say, Carstairs! How's Klein doing?"

In the bow, the second mate looked up from the form which lay sprawled in the bottom of the boat. "He's bad," he reported. "I don't know what to do next. We've got a tourniquet around his leg, but it's still pouring out of him something terrible."

* * *

Fernando Ortega, the Puerto Rican fireman, bent over the dying boy, shook his head sadly and then peered over the gunwale into the oily water. "Well, the Captain ees down there waiting for him, anyway!" he sighed, consolingly. Feeling it proper to offer a prayer for the fleeting soul and for the one already sped, he crossed himself and fumbled for his rosary in the pocket of his shirt, for some reason, however, his fingers refused to close upon it. Puzzled, he withdrew his hand from the pocket and was annoyed even angry, to discover that three of the fingers were missing. Hastily, he shoved the mangled member into his pants pocket and then glanced around him to see if any of the others had noticed it. Madre! He'd hate like hell to have the boys see him wearing a funny-looking paw like that! Assured that none of them had, he fished out the rosary with his left hand, closed his eyes and proceeded to pray . . .

"There! There's the Skipper! —He's just the other side of that grating!"

They saw a head so thickly coated with black, shiny oil that it appeared to be made of tar. It lolled back limply against the air-cushion collar of the life jacket.

"He's still breathing. Grab ahold of him you guys! Whoa! Easy, easy! There, that does it!"

They stretched him out on the bottom boards and wiped his face. He coughed stranglingly, rolled over on his right side, gagged, coughed and gagged again. Abruptly, Mr. Rossi knelt astradle of him, grasped him by the shoulders and turned him over on his tomach. "Come on, Captain!" he urged, gently. "Heave it up and you'll feel better!"

Captain Elder was violently sick.

"Fine!" nodded Mr. Rossi. "Hey, Carstairs, pass the whisky back here."

The bottle was passed from hand to hand, but by the time it reached the mate it was still dripping Cadet Klein's blood.

"Poor Bernie!" shuddered the mate, wiping it on his sweater and then uncorking it. "Captain! —Captain! Can you hear me?"

Captain Elder nodded weakly. "Everybody—here?"

"Yop, we all made it, sir!"

"Good!" He lay silent for a moment. "I . . . was . . . under . . . water . . . a pretty long time, wasn't I?"

"Yes, a long time, sir. Here, Smitty—help me hoist him up a bit. Come on now, Captain, take a snort of this."

The Captain drank, choked a little and blinked. Very slowly he raised his head and looked around him. "Hello, there men!" he smiled. But gradually the smile gave way to a troubled look, the troubled look to a scowl; he struggled to get to his feet but was too weak to do so. His fists clenched and he commenced to tremble. "Where's the sub?" he demanded hoarsely. "Where is he? Hunh? Did the sneaking son of a pig show himself? Did he? Did he?"

"Haven't seen a sign of him, sir. He either stayed submerged or else he's over there in that fog . . ."

"Jeez. I wish we could stop this bleeding," Carstairs's worried voice came from the bow. "It's pretty near ankle deep up here, now. Parker's got his hand inside the wound but he can't seem to grab ahold of the artery."

"He's talking about Cadet Klein, Captain," Mr. Rossi explained. "When we fished him out of the water, he said he was all OK, but when he tried to stand up, it was no soap. Then we found his right leg was pretty near blown off of him."

"No! Oh, hell," groaned Captain Elder. "Come, help me get for-ard to him, Rossi!"

"No, no, you stay quiet, sir. Carstairs and Cadet Parker are doing all they can."

"He's moving a little," Carstairs called back to them. "Sh-sh-sh! Pipe down, everybody—he's trying to say something—Yes, Klein!—What is it, Bernie? Go on, kid—we're listening!"

* * *

Captain Elder struggled to his feet, stood dizzily on the thwart and with his elbows shoved aside the men who obstructed his view. For an instant, only an instant, he saw an ashen face with slowly moving lips. "No, Captain!" Rossi restrained him gently. "Sit down and take it easy. There's nothing you can do."

"Warm! Warm!" a voice piped weakly from the bow. "It's so . . . nice . . . and . . . warm! Hey, Momma, this is really swell! Did the landlord raise the rent on us, or only hire a new janitor?"

"He thinks he's taking a bath."

"Hey, Momma—Momma! Hang a fresh towel on the doorknob, will you?—Boy, am I having a swell soak!—Who says there's no hot water in the Bronx?" Cadet Klein laughed and, still laughing, died.

There was an interval of silence. Broken only by coughing and clearing of throats.

Captain Elder gritted his teeth and fought back his tears. He felt that his strength had returned sufficiently to enable him to assume his professional responsibilities. He rose painfully and moved into the stern-sheets beside Mr. Rossi. For a moment he sat staring away at the great, slick patch of oil which blanketed the sea. "Five million gallons of it!" he muttered. "Five million gallons that could have helped win the war!" Then he shifted his gaze to the white, sunbathed wall of fog which lay a scant mile to leeward. "Oh, you Nazi stinkers!" he said, softly. "Oh you filth! You—you . . ." He spat into the water. "Well, Mister," he addressed Mr. Rossi, briskly, "We'll never get anywhere staying here! Nearest land is Montauk Point—should be about 90 miles, bearing about 297 degrees. If we miss it, we'll surely hit Connecticut. That is, if somebody doesn't pick us up first."

"Right, sir! Let's get going!—Come on, you guys—Ready? Give way! Stroke—Stroke!—Hup—Together! Come on, you shrinking pansies! There's nothing so good for the liver as a brisk morning row!"

"—Liver, the mate says! Boy, what I couldn't do to a plateful right now!"

"Well, in just a minute, you can open your mouth and eat some of that nice, cold fog!"

"Lousy luck them krauts had to catch us out here in this clear patch, right against the sun. They simply couldn't miss us!"

"Yair—must have been as easy as smacking Goering across the rump with a bull fiddle."

"Goering?—Hunh! I guess you never seen my wife!"

"Well, I never seen her with you, Flynn!"

"Neither of you've seen her since she first seen my profile!" said Stanislawski, who stood six-feet-seven and looked like a lumpy mixture of Victor Mature and Frankenstein's monster. "Hey lend me the loan of a comb, one of you lugs!"

"A comb, he says! Whatsa matter, Stanislawski—getting ready to run off a love scene with Hedy Lamarr?"

"Hell, I been ready for years!" smirked Stanislawski. No comb forthcoming, he smoothed back his hair with what would have been the lissom-wristed gesture of a gigolo, except that his wrist was approximately the thickness of a drayhorse's fetlock.

"Jeez! Handsome Stan! Look at him now, fellers! — Lights! Camera!"

"Aw, nuts to you guys!" said Stanislawski. "Just wait till I break into the pictures and . . ."

"Captain! Look!"

They all looked. There, breaking the surface astern of them almost at the spot where the ship had gone down, was the sub. She was heading in their direction.

"Maybe she hasn't seen us! Row! barked the Captain. "Come on, men—Hup! Hup! Let's try to duck into the fog!" But the submarine had spotted them. Soon they could distinguish upon her conning tower men who pointed and others who peered through binoculars; then more men appeared on the foredeck and stood grouped around the gun.

"He's going to shell us, Captain!"

"Then, by God, let's make ourselves hard to hit! Row! Hup! Hup!"

* * *

They saw one of the Germans in the conning tower wave the crew away from the gun. "What's the idea?" muttered Mr. Rossi. "Do you s'pose he just wants to ask us some questions?"

"If he does, he'll get some answers he'll remember when he's frying in hell!"

"Say!" said Stanislawski, suddenly. "One of them guys in the conning tower's got a movie camera!"

"By gosh, so he has! You better get set, Stan—maybe he's a talent scout!"

"Turn your profile, Stan—Don't let him see that cauliflower ear!"

Leaving a faint trail of smoke behind her, the sub bore down upon them. Soon they could hear the hiss of water parted by her bows, the pulse and throb of her Diesels. At least twenty men were visible upon her, all of them laughing, shouting, making obscene gestures . . .

"Look out, Rossi!—He's—he's going to ram us!"

Desperately, Mr. Rossi shoved the tiller hard over. The lifeboat swung from its course. The submarine's nose veered with it. He dragged the tiller toward him until it crushed against his chest. Again, the sharp steel snout swung in a relentless, following arc, aiming for them square amidships.

Captain Elder sprang to his feet. "Overboard, everybody!" he bawled. "Jump! Get clear of her diving vanes and propellers!"

The submarine struck with a splintering crash, cutting the lifeboat into two pieces which went bumping and rolling and tumbling along the sleek steel sides until they were smothered in the wake.

EVEN SMITHSONIAN FOSSILS ARE GEARED TO WAR EFFORT

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Even the skeletons and fossils on the shelves at the Smithsonian Institution are doing their bit for the war effort.

The huge collection of human skulls together with statistics and reports available to the Institution were studied and used as a basis for designing a uniform oxygen gas mask for the War Department, a spokesman declared.

More than 1,000 specific requests for technical information from the army, navy and other war agencies, he said, have been met by the Smithsonian Institution since the organization of its War Committee in April 1942.

The Institution has gone the gamut from furnishing information on such subjects as physical properties of cloth for uniforms, devices for obtaining drinking water from sea water, emergency food resources for marooned sailors and airmen, and translation of oriental languages to identifying a mosquito from New Guinea.

The far-flung battlefronts of the United Nations, he added, have made the vast Smithsonian studies on native people, for example, of much more than academic interest. Extended illustrated reports on the peoples of strategic areas have been furnished at the request of the army and navy, as well as much spot information needed in a hurry.

The American soldier who loses his way on a Pacific island and meets up with a band of natives can be reassured they have no hostile intentions if they have their women with them, according to a booklet published by the Smithsonian Institution as part of their series on War Background Studies.

The Institution also houses the Ethnogeographic board, of which it is one of the sponsors. This board is an extra-governmental agency concerned with war and post war problems in the human and natural resources of world areas.

All the resources of the Smithsonian Institution have been geared for direct service to the army, navy, and other war agencies and the institution is "determined to do everything" in its power to "aid in winning the war," the spokesman added.

The Institution is happy in the knowledge, he concluded, that many precious days and lives have been saved by the ready availability in Washington of the Smithsonian's varied technical knowledge and collections.

Aviation production in the U. S. in 1943 will cost about one-seventh of the estimated national income.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

LONDON—(By Wireless)—Great Britain's future course is bound to be influenced to no small degree by decisions to be made at the British Labor party's conference this week.

The Labor party will vote to continue the political truce which has prevailed during the war. But the policies of the Labor policy must be assimilated partially by Churchill's national government, as he indicated was happening in his radio address on postwar social security several weeks ago. Churchill is believed to have selected Anthony Eden as his heir, but the Labor party's leadership will have a deep influence on British policy.

Clapper

The party is expected this week to select as its treasurer Herbert Morrison, the home minister. The treasurer is the party's most important official, controlling enormous funds and party patronage. In America a couple of years ago people expected that Labor Minister Ernest Bevin would be the big Labor man of the future in Britain. Morrison is now assuming that prospective status. He is a Socialist who built a strong political machine in London some years ago and rode into party leadership and into the government through that.

I saw Morrison when I was here two years ago, when he was reorganizing home air-raid protection and setting up the fire-watching system. His handling of affairs on the home front has strengthened his position. Now his influence in the government is likely to expand if the Labor party elevates him to treasurer.

Morrison is inclined to give a stronger flavor of socialization to the party program than some others who are primarily trade-unionists. Yet he is not a doctrinaire intellectual but a hardheaded, working-class Socialist.

Morrison insists on placing war and postwar questions, ahead of internal questions He says home affairs have been wrecked twice in the last generation by international explosions. He says Britain's home life is at the mercy of great unchained forces in the international sphere which will continue to wreck domestic plans so long as they remain uncontrolled. Only after the Labor party has faced this, and determined to throw all its weight on the side of sanity and generosity in the world sphere, can the party devote itself usefully to questions of home policy, in his judgment.

Morrison is not obsessed by a narrow conception of social security, which some reduce to a formula of bigger and better doles. He conceives of social security as meaning full employment—secure and productive jobs. He believes Britain must get away from private monopoly restrictions on production and trade, and achieve more socialization in industry—though not complete socialization, as he believes many industries would be better left under the spur of free competition.

The Labor party's executive committee is reporting to the conference a program calling for disarming the Axis, and for maintenance of peace by the four big powers until they can establish a "world political authority" which would be the armed guardian of international peace, also an agency for consultation and decision on great issues arising among nations.

The report calls for numerous other international agencies closely associated with the central authority, including an international labor office concerned with standards of living, and others concerned with the supply and price of primary commodities, and the investment of surplus capital to heal social and economic plague spots.

These are long-term propositions but for the immediate postwar course the Labor party executive committee would lean heavily on close teamwork among the four chief Allied powers. It adds this warning:

"The British government for its part must turn a deaf ear to vested interests whose claims would conflict with the needs of international co-operation."

ASKS U. S. FIRE 300,000 FROM FEDERAL JOBS

Byrd Committee Charges Vast Waste of Manpower, Funds In Over-Staffing.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The government today stood accused of failing to practice what it preaches with respect to manpower.

The joint congressional committee on non-essential expenditures, charging "abuse of power and waste of federal funds," called for immediate discharge of 300,000 civilian government employes.

It reported that 3,008,519 civilians are on the federal payroll—one to every 2½ soldiers—and that fewer than 45 per cent of them are engaged in direct war work. That contrasted, the committee said, with the 917,760 civilian employes on the payroll when the last war ended—one to every five soldiers.

The government's civilian payroll has soared from $141,522,234 a month in September, 1939, to $552,700,300 in April of this year.

The committee recommended cruting;" formation of an effecrecruting;" formation of an effective manpower pool; better selectivity in choice of workers, and a war-transfer program to shift qualified workers to more essential jobs.

The committee said it recognized that additions in personnel were necessary for departments directly engaged in the war effort, but found "no justification for the tremendouus expansions" in others.

"The government," the report said, "finds itself in the peculiar position of advocating a full labor-utilization program within private industry but neglecting the same problem itself. It is imperative that a brake be put on (worker) recruiting. In most cases overstaffing has taken place with resultant waste and duplication of effort.

"The government," the report based on a two-year investigation under the direction of Chairman Harry F. Byrd, D., Va Byrd promised another report on "unusual salaries" in the government The current study, he said, revealed that all agencies, "are open to severe censure for unwarranted pay raises," but the war production board and the bureau of economic warfare "are the most outstanding."

DEMS SET UP SIDESHOW FOR GOVERNOR MEET

Ferguson Expected To Uncork Patronage Blast at His 'Open House.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—Another bout has been scheduled in the running factional fight among Ohio Democrats over federal patronage—which may furnish a colorful political sideshow during the 35th annual governors' conference next week.

Joseph T. Ferguson, Democratic state auditor, has invited Democratic county chairmen to attend the informal "open house" he has planned Monday for Democratic governors attending the non-partisan national meeting.

Important members of the national administration including OPA Administrator Prentiss M. Brown are scheduled to attend the conference Monday.

Ferguson has made no secret of his hope to confront Brown with Buckeye Democrats who have been grumbling about "appointment of too many Republicans" to good federal jobs in Ohio. Principal target of the state's Democrats has been Birkett Williams, regional director of the OPA at Cleveland.

Ferguson touched off the fight May 10 when his party gathered in Columbus for a delayed Washington dinner.

An unannounced caucus of county chairmen with Ferguson turned into a public fight between the state auditor, joined by a number of the county leaders, and State Chairman Darrell Jones, Newark, who was accused of neglecting interests of the party faithfuls in the distribution of federal jobs.

Speaker Sam Rayburn of the house of representatives, featured speaker at the banquet, indirectly supported the promise of Jones that the patronage situation would improve.

The malcontents, headed by Ferguson, set a July 1 deadline for Jones to produce "results"—jobs—or face the prospect of an informal committee of Ohio Democrats which would go over his head to deal directly with Washington officials and congress about distribution of patronage.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

CHICAGO, Ill.—President Roosevelt and Harold Ickes have recently perpetrated in the state of Wyoming an act of annexation which follows the general lines of Adolf Hitler's seizure of Austria. They anschlussed a tract of 221,610 acres for Ickes' domain by a subterfuge after congress had twice rejected proposals for the same annexation. This was done by means of a trick, which, in the president's own words in another situation some years ago, constitutes a clever little scheme having the color of legality.

Pegler

The land is in the area known as Jackson Hole, a region of great beauty, abounding in elk and other wild life, and the anschluss practically wipes out a county of Wyoming contrary to the expressed desires of the people living there, of the legislature and of the Wyoming delegation in both houses of congress.

There is great indignation in the capitol in Cheyenne and the attorney general has filed a suit in the federal district court, and Congressman Frank A. Barrett, counter-attacking from another direction, has introduced a bill to revoke a presidential proclamation by which the tract was seized for the department of the interior as a national monument after recurrent proposals to make it into a national park had been thwarted in the open.

A national park can be created only by an act of congress, but a national monument can be established by presidential proclamation without congressional consent. In either a park or a monument private use of land for grazing or any of the other purposes for which the people of Jackson Hole have been using the land is forbidden. The purpose of the department of the interior was to extend the area of the existing Grand Teton National park, and after this plan had been repeatedly rebuffed in congress, John D. Rockefeller formed a land company in Utah and proceeded quietly to buy up private holdings to the extent of 32,117 acres for presentation to the government as a part of the proposed park.

Testifying before the house committee on public lands in favor of his bill to revoke the presidential anschluss, Congressman Barrett stated on May 14 that an officer of the land company admitted that one reason for incorporating the company in another state was to compel any aggrieved citizen of Wyoming to go into the federal courts for his redress. Mr. Rockefeller spent $1,400,000 for his land, which was the principal source of tax revenues of Teton county whose existence is now threatened if indeed it is not actually liquidated by the seizure.

As Hitler had eyed Austria for years so the interior department had coveted Jackson Hole, and the justification in both cases was similar. Hitler contended that racially and historically Austria and Germany were one, and the department of interior argued that Jackson Hole was a national extension of an approach to Grand Teton park

The law permitting the establishment of national monuments by proclamation, by-passing congress, was plainly intended only to preserve objects of historic and scientific value and provided that land taken for this purpose should be sufficient only to embrace the object and provide for its care. Except in the sense that all American land is historic, this is not a historical monument and no attempt has been made to identify any scientific object. It is now, in fact, the very extension of Grand Teton park which was defeated by congress and opposed by the legislature and succeeding governors and was seized by a process so devious as to mock the government's assurance to the peoples of other lands involved in the war.

On this point, the chairman of the Teton county commissioners wrote:

"We can now more deeply sympathize with people of foreign nations whose homes have been taken away like ours"

Mr. Ickes, whose position corresponds to that of the Nazi governor of Poland, has indicated that he will generously permit the present residents to graze their stock as long as they like, but these people, considering the method of the anschluss, are afraid of another clever little scheme.

The state, on its own part, makes a point of its sovereignty and its right to its own property, including 20,000 elk on the range and other game and the fish in the lakes, its right of taxation and other revenues, its investment in roads and other properties and its right to govern this area within its own boundaries.

Even before the anschluss, the federal government owned outright 45 per cent of the area of Wyoming and the oil and mineral rights under 18 million acres of homestead lands. Thus, Mr. Barrett pointed out, the national government "holds control or dominion" over 75 per cent of the state. This, incidentally, is more or less the status of a number of other western states which are actually, in territory, only fractions of states and are yielding their statehood rapidly to the national government by defaulting their responsibilities and accepting favors from Washington for which the New Deal always exacts its toll of state sovereignty.

MEAT DEALERS CRIMP SUPPLY

Angered at OPA Failure To Enforce Ceilings, They Curtail Slaughtering.

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND — Discouraged Cleveland meat dealers, irked at the inability of the Office of Price Administration to enforce ceiling prices and unable to make a profit on dressed meats, have either stopped killing cattle or have curtailed killing operations extensively.

That was the reason given today by A. Z. Baker, president of the Cleveland union stockyards, for a shortage of beef and veal, a shortage that will become "increasingly worse unless something is done about it," he declared.

"One big packer in Cleveland has turned half his plant over to providing meat for the government and is seriously considering going into that phase of the business 100 per cent," Baker added.

Much conversion of beef to the black market and "unequitable distribution" were other reasons given by the stockyards chief for the meat decline, which is "not serious, but very bad right now."

Pork supplies are plentiful, while lamb is not on the critical list because Ohioans are not heavy lamb eaters, he said.

One custom killer (dealers who buy cattle and have a firm or individual do the slaughtering) has stopped supplying the local trade and is shipping his beef elsewhere, Baker revealed. Ten or 12 such custom killers have quit business in the past few weeks and one packing house head told International News Service he has not killed cattle in four weeks

Quotas allowed these dealers by the government were not turned over to other houses but passed out of existence when the dealer stopped buying cattle.

Scouts from Mansfield, Galion, Bucyrus, Londonville, Crestline and Plymouth will join in the camporal which will be highlighted by the eagle presentations.

Golfers are the e-r-r-r-aziest people. Jim (Typewriter) Orr and Elden (N-J printer) Becker were playing No. 7 at Possum Run last evening when the storm hit. Thoroughly soaked by the first downpour, they decided they couldn't get any wetter if they went in swimming. So they finished the nine-hole round. Then they agreed they were too wet to ride home in Jim's car. So Orr stripped down to his undershirt and shorts, and Becker doffed his shirt for the ride.

GUARDS QUIZZED AFTER SHOOTING

Four Held Following Melee In Which Five Negroes Are Wounded.

(By United Press)

CHESTER, Pa—Four negro guards at the Sun Shipbuilding and Drydock Co., were under military arrest today pending the outcome of a "complete investigation" of the shooting of five negro workers at the company's No. 4 yard.

The fourth naval district said the trouble began when a guard attempted to escort a man from the yard yesterday after he refused to show an identification badge.

The navy said groups of workers gathered around the guard blocking his progress." Three other guards arrived, the navy said, and in the resultant melee a "half brick" was thrown which struck one of the guards on the head and then several shots were fired.

The No 4 yard employs only negro workers.

Guards employed by the company are non-paid members of the Coast Guard Reserve (temporary) under an arrangement to unify waterfront security forces

Meanwhile, Michael Driscoll, chief of police at nearby Eddystone, Pa., said he had arrested Edward Abrams, negro, Wilmington, Del., who he described as an organizer for the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America, CIO on charges of inciting to riot.

CHILD WOUNDED, NURSE QUIZZED

Girl Explains She Thought Gun Was a Toy.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Catherine Coons, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Coons, today was being held for investigation at the county detention home following the wounding of 18-month-old Larry Caplinger.

The Coons girl, hired by Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Caplinger, to act as nursemaid for the child, told police she found the gun, a .22 calibre pistol, on a bed in the Caplinger home and thinking it a toy pulled the trigger. The baby playing on the floor of an upstairs bedroom was struck in the head by the bullet.

Grant hospital officials today described the condition of the child as "poor."

Edward Moran, instructor at the Y.M.C.A. woodwork shop, can probably lay claim to being one of Mansfield's businest men lately. It's his job to supervise the work of more than 200 boys each week, he said the average attendance at the two daily classes are considerably larger than in previous years. The boys are making such articles as model airplanes, boats, bird houses, book shelves and small tables.

HUNTER GIRLS PREFER TO WAIT

NEW YORK—(AP)—In a recent poll conducted to determine how closely student marriages and engagements were affected by the war at Hunter college, the largest college in the world for women, it was revealed that 54 per cent of the students who are married to men in the armed forces were married after their husbands had been inducted. Half of these students are married to army officers and only 1 per cent to navy men.

Of the engaged girls questioned 61 per cent have decided to wait until the war is over until marrying, 9 per cent are undecided, and for the remaining 30 per cent June may mean more than graduation or the end of the semester. These students plan to marry as soon as practicable.

When Bowels Refuse to Move Easily—Watch Out!

Forcing! Straining!—a Common cause of Hemorrhoids—Here's Easy Quick Way to Moisten Hard Dry Passages

When because of constipation you wake up mornings feeling half sick, headachy, with a stomach that rebels at food, tongue coated, bad breath; upset and "out-of-sorts"—bowel movements an effort—you want relief and you want it fast.

In a glass of hot water put one teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts and drink. 15 to 20 minutes later follow with your usual breakfast cup of hot coffee or tea. Moisture is promptly fed into those hard, dry wastes softening them so they can be more gently and easily expelled. Usually within 30 minutes you get glorious relief and should begin to feel bright and refreshed again.

Take only as directed. Try Kruschen for 5 days—for you can so regulate the dose as to bring about that "easy" movement such as you have long desired.

Don't delay — Get Kruschen Salts for prompt and effective relief from forcing and straining. Ask for it today at any drug store. (Muir's Cut Rate Drug Store.

ENJOYS JOKE ON HIS PREDICTION

AN ADVANCED SOUTH PACIFIC BASE—(U.P.)—Admiral William F. Halsey, commander-in-chief of United Nations forces in the South Pacific, predicted in a New Year's day interview that the war would be over in 1943.

Observers believed that Halsey had indulged in a bit of kidding for the benefit of the Japs.

But the admiral had his jest thrown back at him by army, navy and marine corps players in a musical show, "South Sea Scandals."

Two marines peeked from a "foxhole" on the stage and began talking.

"What do you want for Christmas?" asked the first.

The second marine gasped, "What Christmas?"

"That's the day Halsey said we'd be out of the trenches by.

Admiral Halsey sat in the front row and enjoyed the joke with an audience of officers, enlisted men and French residents of this Pacific base.

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Indian stories and any adventures concerning the early postal system are always in demand among the older boys. These are two more such books. Both are suitable for boys out of grade school and will appeal especially to those who like their stories placed in history. They will appear at Mansfield Public library Saturday.

WINGED BOAT, by Elizabeth Gale—When Henry Hudson came to the Indian villages along the river he had discovered he promised to take two boys from the tribe back to Holland with him. Rivalry was high at the time as the boys strove to be chosen. Indian village life as it must have been 300 years ago is clearly described in the history.

MOUNTED MESSENGER, by Cornelia Meigs—Tom Weatherall ran away to join a western traveler, but his sister overtook him to call him back because Mr Franklin wanted him to be the first post rider to carry mail between Pennsylvania and the New England colonies. Letters weren't always exciting but Washington's plan to unite the colonies for mutual government and protection started a series of important messages.

FLATBUSHER GETS SERVICE

SAMPSON, N. Y.—(U.P.)—The days were long and dull for Recruit Nicholas T. Dore, convalesing at the U. S. Naval hospital here after an illness. So he wrote to the Geneva USO explaining he was a long way from his native Brooklyn and "would they please arrange for some pretty girl to visit him." The next visiting period brought two charming hostesses in the persons of Leah Anholt, a student at William Smith college, and Mary Bucklin, of Geneva, both USO hostesses.

RELATES STORY OF JOURNEY TO BATTLE FRONTS

Eve Curie's 'Journey Among Warriors' on New Book List at City Library.

Having established herself as a writer with the biography of her mother, Eve Curie has published a new book, JOURNEYY AMONG WARRIORS, the story of her trip from Free France to the far-flung battle fronts. The book is among the new volumes to be added to the shelves at the Mansfield Public Library Saturday.

Traveling from France to England, to New York to Africa, to Iran, to Moscow, to Kuibyshev, to China, to India she talked with such men as Nehru, Chiang Kai-Shek, Chennault, Gandhi, Cripps and Wavell. And out of her trip the author has brought a document at once human, analytical and inspiring.

THEY ALSO RAN by Irving Stone is the story of the men who were defeated for the presidency—nineteen men who suffered an identical fate and whose lives provide a high powered and amusing lens with which to judge the standards of our times. They present a survey of a neglected and little-known aspect of the history of American politics; and it presents colorful portraits of the men who ran but were not elected.

BOOM COPPER: THE STORY OF THE FIRST U. S. MINING BOOM by Agnus Murdock is a popularly written, anecdotal history of the mining boom in the 1840s on the Keweenaw Peninsula of Upper Michigan.

A new reference book which should prove to be extremely useful is being added to the library collection this week. WAR WORDS by W. Cabell Greet is a timely, authoritative guide to the pronunciation of names in the news. Each entry is respelled two ways: first in a simplified Websterian alphabet, then phonetically without special markings, so that the pronunciation is self-evident. There is also included general notes on the pronunciation of names in the various foreign languages.

Other non-fiction includes: AMERICA'S FIGHTING PLANES IN ACTION, Kinert; ECUADOR, Franklin; FREMONT: PATHMARKER OF THE WEST, Nevins; WOOD TECHNOLOGY, Tiemann; THE HOME VETERINARIAN'S HANDBOOK, Baker; FOOD PROCESSING, Duncan; MAKING THE MOST OF YOUR PERSONALITY, Richmond; THE HOME MECHANIC, Tuomey; CAREERS IN RETAILING FOR YOUNG WOMEN, McFerran; PRAYER, Buttrick.

THE GOLDEN FEATHER by Sheda Kenyon is an exciting historical romance that sweeps through the colorful and violent reign of Charles I and then across the sea to the Potomac plantations and New England. A lusty tale of love and high adventure against a background of political and religious oppression, it tells, in particular, the story of Clarissa Brinton and Gerald and Ajax Tracy—of their many adventures—until, in the New World, despite famine, massacres and plague, they find ultimate freedom.

JOSHUA MOORE, AMERICAN by George F. Hummel is a novel of a man who typifies in himself and his descendents the American dream. It presents the development of America as seen through the eyes of the first Joshua Moore to, landing on Long Island, has a clear vision of what America could and would become. Beginning with a colorful picture of those early times on the Eastern seaboard, the reader is given an exciting and significant picture of this country's formative years, followed by a panorama of it's development as the various Joshuas have to do with the problems of their separate ages.

CELIA'S HOUSE by D. E. Stevenson, author of "Miss Buncle," is a pleasant story of a house and its influence on the lives of the people who live in it. When old Celia Dunne came to die in 1905, she willed her house to her grandnephew with the understanding that he should have a daughter Celia to inherit the house. So, in 1930 along came Celia and the story covers the years from Celia's birth to the present.

Other fiction includes: THE WHOLE HEART, Howe; THE YELLOW OVERCOAT, Acre; MR. FORTUNE FINDS A PIG, Bailey.

SOLDIERS WHIP DISEASE HAZARD

Crandall, recently invalided home after serving 8½ months in the South Pacific theater, said the U. S. Army medical corps was battling the islands of mosquitoes as a first step in reducing spread of disease. The corps was much better situated now to care for sick and wounded men than at the beginning of the campaign, he said.

VICTORY OMENS GREET MARINES

SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC (Delayed)—(U.P.)—Marine Capt. Irwin S. Bradford of Laurel, Miss., tells of a spectacular double omen of victory which greeted the first raising of the Stars and Stripes by a Marine corps unit here. As colors sounded, a cloud formation split the rays of the sunrise into a gigantic "V". Then to the strains of the national anthem, a flock of geese in perfect "V" formation appeared in the east, and as if directed by unseen hands, changed course to fly directly over the flagpole.

Try to Settle Differences Among French

Blind Teacher Trains Soldiers In Weather Lore

PHILADELPHIA—(INS)—Though blind since the age of two, Thomas A. Benham, Haverford college physics instructor, is doing his share for the war effort.

The 28-year-old teacher, always accompanied by his faithful German shepherd dog, Hattie, instructs two groups of 25 soldiers in a premeteorology course. These men, following their training, will become weather officers in the United States army air forces.

Benham, who is married, likes to work in the physics laboratory where he points with pride to a milliammeter he constructed which contains figures in Braille.

His wife does all his reading for him and helps him mark his students' test papers.

"Tom has a remarkable memory and a wonderful mental picture of everything," she said. "I have to read it only once and he remembers it. I don't know anything about physics but I'm learning."

Benham can speak French and German fluently. Besides his two army courses, he supervises projects for advanced students in electricity, radio and allied subjects and conducts regular university classes.

"Being blind isn't a handicap," Benham says. "It's an inconvenience."
